

SINKING SHIP SENDS FRANTIC CALLS FOR HELP AS STORMS WASH NORTH PACIFIC WATERS

NATIONAL SURVEY INDICATES G. O. P. LOSS ON TUESDAY

Mid-Administration Gains for Democrats Regarded as Inevitable in Biennial Election.

CONTROL OF HOUSE HANGS IN BALANCE

Republican Majority Almost Certain To Be Greatly Cut and Foes Hope for Clear Victory.

A preliminary survey of the election next Tuesday made by The Constitution and the North American News-Paper Alliance indicates that the result will be in accord with the historic rule of a mid-term setback for an administration which rose to power in a landslide.

Many reasons are given for this change in political sentiment. The depression in business, the governing of public utilities, a return of the democrats who bolted their party in 1928, and, more generally, the need seen by many for some change in the prohibition law.

Doubtless, each of these will affect the result, but this election is most remarkable for the number of men holding office as the representatives of their political party while they are battling to defeat the titular head of that party. Many thousands more voters are ignoring everything else and simply voting wet or dry.

The main question to be decided Tuesday, however, is whether this general dissatisfaction is strong enough to wrest the control of congress from Mr. Hoover's party and give it to the democrats. To accomplish this, the democrats will have to gain 10 seats in the senate and 53 in the house of representatives.

Reports from pivotal states do not quite show this radical change, but do indicate that both than they have been for some years, and that the question of modifying or repealing the Volstead law will be an outstanding one in 1932.

Illinois

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Illinois democrats expect a landslide for James Hamilton Lewis for senator, while the republicans do not see how Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick can lose.

As the strangest campaign in the history of the state gets down to the insanity stage, it appears that Lewis has gained considerably in the last fortnight. Sporadic reports of betting that have any degree of authenticity show even money wagers now where it was eight to five in Mrs. McCormick's favor a month ago. The Chesterfield-Lewis, who once took off his hat and bowed when answering a telephone call, has heard a woman's voice, seems to have his two women opponents beaten.

After putting the aggregate of canvasses and surveys by party leaders into a hat and shaking well, where it comes out indicates the following forecast:

Lewis by 50,000.

Mrs. McCormick should have a majority of around 100,000 in a total of 101 counties, while Lewis should win in Cook county including Chicago by around 150,000.

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, the independent republican dry, will run third.

The total vote in the state should be about 2,000,000. The six other candidates for the senate will be lost in the shuffle, although their names will appear on a ballot as big as a Texas bed sheet.

Reporters from anti-Hoover administration newspapers visiting Chicago attempted to find a rabid anti-Hoover sentiment, but have been unable to substantiate their belief that the president was responsible for the business depression and the drought, which did not injure Illinois farmers greatly at any time.

However, it is a fact that the modification prohibition sentiment has been in Illinois and Lewis' plan of state manufacture and sale of beer, wine, liquor and similar tokens from home-grown grain, proceeds of such state controlled manufacture and sale less cost and fixed margin for state treasury to constitute form of farm relief for grain growers has at least caused comment. The prohibition referendum is expected to be dropping.

Much Opposition.

There is considerable opposition to Mrs. McCormick among elderly Chicago state farmers on the ground that they Atlanta Youth Confesses Part in Robberies and Implicates 2 Other Men.

Arrest Sunday of a man whom detectives say was the leader of the trio of bandits who late Thursday night staged holdup robberies at the drug store on Forest avenue and the Baltimore Pharmacy, 117 the Baltimore hotel, revealed that police already were holding one man suspected of complicity in the robberies and that it is expected the third will be taken at an early date.

J. P. "Jack" Murray, 28, of 411 South Pryor street, was taken in custody early Sunday morning at his home by detectives acting on information given by a man arrested last Friday under the name of J. D. Gillan, of Macon. Detectives later said the first man arrested admitted his name is Fred Prokes, 19, of 1047 Dunning street. After a two-hour grilling, Gillan, or Prokes, Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole said, made a full confession of the robbery shortly after he was taken at his home, implicating Murray as the man who did the actual holdup work during the robberies.

In Murray's room the detectives found a sack of money, a sack of small silver, amounting to approximately $10, believed to be part of the proceeds of the two robberies around $150. In addition to rifling the cash registers of the two drug stores the bandits held up several customers as they entered the Baltimore Pharmacy.

Detectives Sunday said that victims of this holdup as well as employees of the Crews drug store had identified Prokes and Murray as two of the trio. The identity of the third man named to have been named in the confession of Prokes was not divulged by officers.

Murray and Prokes are being held on charges of highway robbery. Prokes Sunday night told newspapermen that the "two jobs Thursday night were his first." "My father killed himself two years ago," he declared, "and since then the support of my mother and six younger brothers and sisters has fallen on me. I have been unable to get work during the last few months and that, coupled with worry over my health, just made me desperate."

Detectives W. W. Ford and W. D. McGee, who captured the alleged bandits, were warmly commended by Chief Poole. "They worked three days and nights on the case without sleep and are still working to get the third man," he said.

Hundreds View Body Found in Abandoned Campbell County Shack. Man Declared Suicide.

FAIRBURN, Ga., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—With a coroner's jury returning a verdict that eliminated murder as a consideration of the manner in which he had met death, the mystery of the identity of the young man whose body was found hanging in a dilapidated farm shack in Campbell county late Saturday afternoon, was heightened Sunday after thousands of persons had viewed it in the undertaking parlor to which it was removed for the inquest.

Suicide by hanging was the verdict returned by a jury empaneled by Coroner T. C. Rivers after an inquiry that began Saturday night was resumed Sunday morning.

Sheriff T. W. Camp Sunday night said that news of the suicide had resulted in an almost continuous stream of persons filing by the body during the day, as well as nearly 100 telephone calls from within and without the county. The only new development in the effort of authorities to ascertain the man's identity was the recovery that on the inside of the right heel was a deep scar, apparently having been received in childhood. Sheriff Camp was hopeful that the scar would prove helpful in identification of the man.

Body Partly Unclothed. Discovered by Floyd and Clarence Johnson, brothers, during a hunting trip, the body was partly unclothed and the improvised rope by which it hung to a doorway had been made of strips torn or cut from a pair of near by new overalls worn by the man. He was believed to be about 25 years of age.

Sheriff Camp also revealed that one of the possible clues as to the identity of the man was a small, gold-colored watch found on a woman's name carved by a pen-knife on a cheap red octagon-shaped pencil. The pencil was found in the dead man's brown herring-bone coat and bore the name "Pearl."

The scarred heel, the pencil and the watch, which the man's hand revealed signs of dental attention caused Sheriff Camp to hope that identification of the body would be possible by authorities outside the county.

It was pointed out that the second tooth from the "eye tooth" in the upper right jaw was a gold-crowned inlay and through it means, it was said, identity of the man might be established. Unless identification is made by noon today, Sheriff Camp said, the body probably would be buried.

While the coroner's verdict dispelled to a certain extent the initial uncertainty as to how the man came to his death, it was pointed out that the position of the body when found by authorities Saturday night and the fact that the man's hand was found to the place where the crude knot touched the chin was an unnatural one, and it also was recalled that when the body was found both feet were resting on the floor of the abandoned house, the knees bent slightly and the fists clenched tightly.

Sheriff Camp Sunday asserted that he felt position that the unidentified body was not that of any citizen of Campbell county. He said that enough citizens of the county had viewed the body during the day to have detected the man's identity had the soles of the man's crude workman's shoes were packed with paper delivery blanks of an Atlanta baking concern, he was inclined to think that it was more probable that the victim was an Atlantan than a resident of Fairburn or other parts of Campbell county.

Aside from a small pocket knife, a few boxes of matches and a couple of pencil stubs, no article on which identification could be traced were found in the man's possession. The victim was almost unclothed when found by the huntsmen, and apparently, it was said, he had been wearing a pair of overalls. It is located only a mile from the center of Oklahoma City's business center.

But before the Stout well bowed to the will of the workers the last gesture of its fury emerged seven miles downstream in the oil-covered North Canadian river on the south bank of which the gusher is located. Fire broke out in the stream and great clouds of black smoke could be seen for miles.

Only a small area, however, was burning; the river current checked the progress of the fire upstream while it burned itself out, the other direction. The blaze was not regarded as dangerous despite the ominous smoke column and the leaping flames.

DEFINITE ACTION EXPECTED TODAY ON COUNCIL CUT

Key and White-Gilliam Reduction Plans To Be Submitted by Charter Revision Body.

Council today will resume consideration of the two major plans for a reduction in the membership of its chamber, with a report of the charter revision committee to be the first order of business, and discussion among proponents of the Key and White-Gilliam reduction plans scheduled to follow.

Leaders of the movement to bring about a drastic cut in the numerical membership of council were hopeful that today's session will be productive of some definite result toward that end, pointing out that a minimum of time remains between now and December 3, the date of the general city elections, at which time such a proposal would have to go before voters throughout the city as a referendum.

In its report, the charter revision committee will make no recommendation as to a choice between the reduction plan suggested by Mayor-elect James L. Key and that agreed upon by Councilman John A. White and Alderman Ed Gilliam, but will merely deal with the advisability of a lesser number of members, leaving to council the matter of choosing whatever plan its members feel will be more advantageous to the city.

The Key reduction plan provides for a cut in the number of city wards from the present number of 13 to a mere six, with two councilmen to be elected from each of the half dozen wards, and an aldermanic board of six members to be named by the city at large. It also provides for centralization of operation of the municipal government by giving to department heads full authority to carry on the affairs of their respective divisions and at the same time it curtails the activities of councilmanic committees. Under his plan there would be 18 members of council, as compared to the unwieldy number of 39 at present.

White-Gilliam reduction idea embraces the plan of retaining the present ward lines with only one council member to be elected from each ward. It also provides for a council of eight, two to be selected from four equally-divided sections of the city. This proposal would provide a total council of 24.

In addition to the reduction proposals which are expected to require lengthy consideration at today's session, the committee also has at 1 o'clock to consider relief measures toward an easement of the city's stringent financial condition, and to discuss ways and means of raising needed funds through loans. It is understood that the borough is unable at present to meet $200,000 of accrued debts against the city and that although November pay rolls for city workers will be met, the comptroller, S. Graham West, has frankly stated that unless the city's financial condition improves during the rest of the winter, the city will face greater embarrassment financially than it has for some time.

Famous Australian Flyer's Father Dies

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 2.—(P.) The death of William Kingsford Smith, father of Charles Kingsford Smith, conqueror of both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, was announced today.

The famous flyer's father was confined to his bed after the excitement and strain incident to Kingsford Smith's flight across the Atlantic last summer. He rallied for a time after the illness, but he died recently of a heart attack.

Mr. Smith requested that his ashes be scattered on the waters of the Pacific ocean. Friends said his famous son probably would perform the sad duty.

'Crime School' for Officers Is Urged by Atlanta Leaders

BY BEN COOPER. An Atlanta metropolitan area crime school designed to increase efficiency of police officers by instructing them in the value and preservation of evidence and in rudimentary principles of law was urged Saturday by Mayor-elect James L. Key. Assistant Solicitor-General John H. Hudson, of Fulton county; Solicitor-General C. C. Smith, of DeKalb county; John F. McClelland, solicitor, criminal court of Atlanta; Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole and others.

WEATHER DELAYS DO-X OCEAN TRIP

Huge Flying Boat's Departure for U. S. Postponed.

ALTENREIN, Switzerland, Nov. 2.—(P.)—A storm over Holland caused postponement today in the departure of the giant German flying-boat Do-X for Amsterdam on the first leg of a flight to New York.

The plane was poised on the edge of Lake Costance, fueled, manned and its motors turning, when a messenger arrived with a telegram which gave warning of the storm. The message came just as Commander Friedrich Christensen was about to give the order to cast off.

The telegram, sent from England, said the barometer in the English channel had fallen 27 millimeters in an hour, indicative of a severe storm. A telephone check with Holland disclosed the storm had already arrived there.

Upon receipt of this confirmative information, Maurice and Claude Dornier, builders of the plane, and Christensen threw up their hands and said there would be no start today. Whether an attempt to takeoff would be made tomorrow or Tuesday was uncertain.

Maurice Dornier's only comment was: "We must wait for a clearing up of this weather situation."

Weather conditions at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. eastern standard time) were so favorable it was decided to start on the first stage of the ship's long flight across the Atlantic. A drizzling rain was falling, however, as the ship was slid out from its shed and headed toward the open lake. Only a small group of enthusiasts with open umbrellas watched the preparations from outside the yards of the Dornier plant.

A half hour later the sun again was out and the weather looked perfect. The 15 members of the crew climbed into the ship, the last biscuits were put aboard and mechanics once more tested all the bolts which had been tested innumerable times previously.

The motors had been started and church bells began pealing when the messenger arrived.

Dignitaries of Many Nations Witness Lavish Coronation Ceremonies at Ethiopian Capital.

BY JAMES A. MILLS. Associated Press Staff Writer.

ADDIS ABABA, Abyssinia, Nov. 2.—(P.)—Amidst barbaric splendor and lavish pageantry, Ras Tafari Mokonnen, the 39-year-old prince who has been crowned as Abyssinia for 14 years, was crowned at dawn today as Emperor Haile Selassie I.

The United States was represented at the ceremonies by an official delegation and by private citizens from various sections of the country from Seattle to New York.

The coronation gives Ras Tafari, who claims descent from King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, the titles of emperor, lord king of kings of Ethiopia, conquering lion of the tribe of Judah, the elect of God, and the light of the world.

Simultaneously, the royal consort, Princess Wajirat Menen, a short, rosy woman of 40, was crowned as Queen Eteja Menen, queen of queens of Ethiopia. This was virtually the queen's "coming-out party," as she heretofore has been confined to her household and motherly duties in the royal household. She has five children, one of them married, and has taken no active part in court and state affairs.

Unparalleled. The coronation ceremony, performed by the venerable Coptic Archbishop of Ethiopia, was unparalleled in modern times for quaintness, color and magnificence. The cost to the government was estimated at $3,000,000. For six months the nation has been preparing holiday garb for the occasion.

As their majesties rode to the church through the city, the streets of the mountain capital, which were packed with tens of thousands of their braves and chiefs, the masses thrived with cheers and wild, savage cries of acclaim. Scores of natives were trampled in the dust as the crowd surged to catch sight of the coronation party.

On either side of the potentates, acting as escorts of honor, were olive-skinned, black-bearded and curly-headed Ethiopian princes and tribal chiefs. They wore multicolored costumes of silk and satin, embroidered in gold and silver. Their shields were of hippopotamus hides, and they carried medieval swords and scabbards. Behind the monarch and his queen were the high priests in vestments of scarlet, green, yellow or purple, carrying gold and silver croziers and incense lamps. Following the ecclesiastics were groups of princes and grandees in black and ceremonial capes, and the members of the cabinet and government in their national shampans.

Imperial Chariot. Ras Tafari and his queen rode in the imperial chariot which once belonged to former Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany. The carriage was drawn by six snow-white horses.

Arriving at the Church of St. George, they descended from the chariot, their coronation robes of scarlet and gold glittering in the sun. The sunlight was reflected fiercely from the gold and diamonds on their crowns, where the figure of the lion of Judah symbolized the national power.

The foreign princes, ministers and delegates had already taken their seats in the church, which proved to be a most impressive sight. One of the basic ideas behind the coronation would be to obtain perfect coordination and co-operation between all law enforcement agencies, it was pointed out. This could be accomplished by having the officers pursue the same studies, and meeting in the common ground of such a school. As suggested by Mayor-elect Key and other advocates of the school, the instructions would be given regularly by experienced men within the department, and occasional lectures would be given by federal, state and city prosecuting officers and crime detection experts. There would be no expenses for the school's operation, except for incidentals, and the benefits reaped would more than repay time and effort put into it, the advocates pointed out.

WOMAN IS KILLED IN CROSSING CRASH

Mrs. Horace Heiden Dies Following Train-Auto Accident Here.

One woman was fatally injured, and another was severely hurt in two automobile accidents Sunday night—one when an automobile was struck and demolished at a railroad crossing, and the other when two automobiles crashed at an intersection where several serious collisions have occurred during the last year.

Mrs. Horace H. Heiden, 23, of 929 Euclid avenue, died at 12:50 o'clock this morning at Grady hospital as the result of the crossing accident.

Driven by her husband, who is an instructor at Hoke Smith Junior High school, the Heiden automobile was struck by a swiftly moving Central Georgia passenger locomotive at McCall's Crossing in West End.

According to witnesses the locomotive was backing toward the Terminal station, where it was to be coupled with the Southland, crack passenger train of the Central between Cincinnati and Jackson. The Heiden automobile was proceeding toward town across the tracks, it was said, and apparently Mrs. Heiden was unaware of the oncoming engine, which struck the car, knocking Mrs. Heiden to the side of the crossing right-of-way. She received a fracture of the skull, a broken right leg, several fractured ribs and other internal injuries. Her husband was slightly hurt.

She was taken to Grady hospital by L. M. Nolan, 1241 Greenwich avenue, and H. F. Simonton, 748 Lee street. The Heidens were returning to their home in the city, where their pastor, the Rev. T. G. Ahrendt, of Grace Evangelical Lutheran church, to visit friends in College Park.

Miss Anne Johnson, of 391 Simpson street, was severely hurt in a crash of two automobiles at Pine and Courtland streets. The collision occurred in a place where several major accidents have happened during the last year, including one in which a motorist was killed, and where residents are preparing a petition requesting the borough to erect a traffic light.

According to police, Miss Johnson said the car in which was a passenger was driven by Charles Garrard, a soldier at Fort McPherson, who could not be found when police reached the scene. The other car was driven by Walter Ingram, negro, 252 East Linden street. Ingram was slightly injured.

Struck down by a hit-and-run motorist as she was about to board a trolley car in front of 376 Capitol avenue early Sunday night, Mrs. Minna Greinmann, of 129 Washington street, was severely injured, police reported. License number of the auto, said to have been occupied by four or five boys and girls, was furnished officers by a pedestrian who saw the accident. Mrs. Greinmann was not believed to be critically hurt, it was said.

The foreign princes, ministers and delegates had already taken their seats in the church, which proved to be a most impressive sight. One of the basic ideas behind the coronation would be to obtain perfect coordination and co-operation between all law enforcement agencies, it was pointed out. This could be accomplished by having the officers pursue the same studies, and meeting in the common ground of such a school. As suggested by Mayor-elect Key and other advocates of the school, the instructions would be given regularly by experienced men within the department, and occasional lectures would be given by federal, state and city prosecuting officers and crime detection experts. 40 MEN ON BOARD BADLY DAMAGED JAPANESE VESSEL

Rescue Vessel, Ploughing Through Wild Seas, Has Difficulty in Understanding Messages.

HELPLESSLY ADRIFT SAYS RADIO SIGNAL

With Rudder Lost, Cargo Shifted and Dangerous List, Freighter Believed Foundering.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(P.)—Wallowing helplessly in heavy north Pacific seas, the Japanese freighter Seiyu Maru sent out frantic messages late today in an effort to make a rescue ship understand her position. The freighter, carrying a crew of about 40 men, wireless she had lost her rudder, was listing dangerously and in a sinking condition.

The steamship California was trying to go to the aid of the helpless craft in the stormy waters southwest of the Aleutian Islands. Radio messages received by this Dollar Steamship Company radio station at Mussel Rock indicated the rescue ship was having difficulty understanding the distress calls of the Japanese vessel.

"I can't make you understand English," the radio operator aboard the Seiyu Maru told the California, the Dollar station reported. At 3:55 p. m. (P. S. T.) the California was reported 25 miles away from the distressed ship after ploughing through the seas for several hours in search of the freighter.

First word from the Seiyu Maru's plight was received here through the President Grant when the Japanese craft began sending out distress signals at 5 a. m. She reported her position as latitude 50.15 north and longitude 178.25 east which placed her southward of the Aleutians.

At 1:45 p. m. she wireless: "Have 16 degree list, lost rudder and drifting helplessly." The Seiyu Maru's route from Portland to Yokohama, carried no passengers, her agents said.

She is a steel vessel of 6,350 gross tonnage, owned by the Matsui Kaisha Shipping Company. She was built in Glasgow in 1913.

FLOYD COUNTY DEPUTY SLAIN

Paul B. Freeman, 46, Shot Investigating Alleged "Rum House."

ROME, Ga., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Floyd county police tonight arrested John Robinson, 25, in connection with the slaying today of Paul B. Freeman, 46, special deputy.

Authorities were given two versions of the killing. A witness, whose name was withheld, told them that Freeman was passing the Robinson home in an automobile when he saw a man emerge with a number of bottles that looked as if they contained liquor. Freeman went to investigate, the witness said, and was killed by a load from a shotgun as he reached the back door of the residence.

In his cell here tonight Robinson admitted the shooting, but claimed self-defense. He said that he did not know Freeman and could not comprehend a man walking toward his home with a pistol in his hand.

"I saw him coming," Robinson asserted, "and got my shotgun. Just as he reached the doorway he made a movement as if he was leveling his gun toward me and I fired." The full discharge of the shot took effect in Freeman's chest and neck. He died within a few minutes.

Informing of the slaying by neighbors, County Policeman Roy Floyd, with H. T. McCall, county jailer, went to Robinson's home and made the arrest. The officers said they were not searching the house as they were without a search warrant.

Mr. Freeman, in addition to his duties as a county officer, served as nightwatchman at the chemical works, near the Lake. Seven persons were injured. One may die, police said.

The explosion shook the entire district and attracted thousands.

Building in Boston Wrecked by Blast

Cannon's Condition Remains Serious

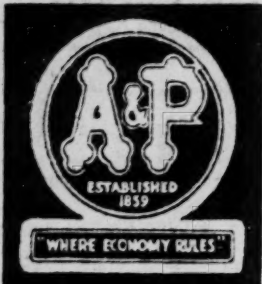

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(P.)—Dr. R. Lyman Sexton said today the condition of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., remained serious but that there was no immediate danger.

The physician said the inflammatory arthritis, which sent the Southern Methodist churchman to Sibley hospital, had been checked during the day and there was no change other-wise.

The arthritis was said by Dr. Sexton to have spread previously to both arms and legs and above the right knee. The bishop was described as in "severe pain."

THE PRICE of FOOD TODAY

These prices are provided by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. as a buying guide to housewives. Prices shown in the first column are in effect at A&P Food Stores today, November 3rd.

PERSONAL

Only business men as a rule read the market reports that tell the changing prices of food stuffs sold in large quantities. An easier way to keep informed is to ask an A&P Store for its prices. They do not stay up when wholesale prices are down.

HUNT TO SUPPORT PARTY NOMINEES

Attorney for Defeated Candidates Will Stick By County Democrats.

J. Mallory Hunt, prominent Atlanta attorney, who represented unsuccessful candidates for county commission posts in the white primary March 19, and had charge of the investigation of alleged irregularities in the conduct of that primary with a view of filing contests, Sunday declared he would support the party nominees in Tuesday's election.

Paul S. Etheridge, Dr. William L. Gilbert and Walter N. Hendrix, democratic primary nominees, are opposed in the election by Dr. Dan Griffith and Alex. Whitley, two of the unsuccessful candidates in the primary, and R. F. Thompson, who compose an opposition ticket, while W. D. Puckett and W. M. Newman are other independents.

Fulton county voters will cast their ballots in 38 boxes scattered throughout the county, those in the various boroughs opening at 7 o'clock in the morning and closing at 6 o'clock at night, while polling places in outlying districts will open at 8 o'clock in the morning and close at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. About 28,000 are qualified.

Camp to Go on Air. Lawrence S. Camp, of Fairburn, chairman of the Georgia state democratic committee, will go on the air at 6:30 o'clock tonight in favor of the party nominees for Fulton county commissioner, asking Fulton county democrats to remain loyal to the party. He will be followed at 10:15 o'clock by Albert H. Cornett, chairman of the Fulton county democratic committee, with a similar plea.

Democrats are stressing the importance of party loyalty and have attacked independents as attempting to break the political solidarity of the party by "scuttling it from its own ranks."

Declaring that while there are some things which he cannot endorse, "these evils should be eradicated inside the party and not by secession," Mr. Hunt stated he had seen the good results of the primary system for some 30 years, and was heartily in favor of it.

Hunt Statement. Text of Mr. Hunt's statement follows: "I am familiar with the white primary system as practiced in several counties of the state, particularly Polk, Floyd and Fulton counties. I have seen the good results of the primary system for some 30 years, and am heartily in favor of it. "While some evils which I cannot endorse have crept into the working of the system, these evils should be eradicated inside of the party, and not by secession. If the southern states had remained inside the Union to fight for their rights, undoubtedly, they would have fared better. The same principle is applicable to a system so meritorious as the white primary. I do not place party above principle, but I do believe that corrections of evils should be made inside of the party, and that the white primary should not be torn down or suspended except for the very gravest reasons."

Irregularities Charged. Independents have charged that irregularities in the primary caused them to enter the general election. These charges have been denied by Albert Howell, chairman of the Fulton county democratic executive committee, and several investigations by grand juries and several court actions have failed to bear them out, according to a statement issued Saturday by the three nominees.

Polling places in DeKalb county for the election follow: Decatur District: Decatur courthouse; Avondale Pharmacy; corner East Lake Drive and College Avenue. Oakhurst; Goodson Store, Poplar Springs.

Edgewood District: Little Five Points; Judge Buchanan's courtroom, corner Whiteford avenue and DeKalb avenue.

MISS ELMER DIES AT PRINCETON, N. J.

Miss Virginia T. Elmer, 75, sister of Mrs. John S. Candler, and aunt of Mrs. E. E. Pomeroy, wife of Judge Pomeroy, died suddenly at her home in Princeton, N. J., Sunday morning.

The body will arrive here today for interment, which will be at Marietta in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son. Miss Elmer was born and reared in Marietta and resided in Atlanta for many years, making her home with Judge Candler and his wife. The daughter of the late Jerry B. Elmer and Virginia Taylor Elmer, of Marietta, Mrs. Elmer received her education at the Lagrange Female college. For the past few years she has been living in Princeton, where she died Sunday. In addition to her daughter and Mrs. Pomeroy she is survived by another niece, Mrs. J. E. McRee.

LAMONT VOICES PLEA FOR RUTH M'CORMICK

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(P)—Secretary Lamont tonight urged election of Ruth Hannu McCormick, the republican senatorial nominee in Illinois, and the return of a republican congress in the election next Tuesday.

In a statement through the republican senatorial committee, the secretary of commerce asserted that "action has been so essential that there be the fullest team play in the conduct of the government as at this time while the country is passing through a period of business depression."

HARRY H. BROWN DIES IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2.—(P)—Harry H. Brown, known more familiarly as "Doc" Brown, died here Sunday in his apartment in a local hotel, of heart trouble.

Brown was known more particularly as defendant in a case in United States district court, now on appeal to the federal circuit court of appeals, charging liquor conspiracy, in the trial of which he was convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000. The case was connected with that against the Bailey-Tuten group, a number of whom were tried and convicted here last year and early this year. Brown was originally from Alabama.

Big Midnight Show Planned For Firemen's Band Benefit

Having the hearty co-operation of city officials, theatrical executives and ranking officers of the fire department, plans are under way for the season's most extravagant midnight vaudeville and picture show, which will be staged at one minute past midnight November 23. Above (left to right) are seen J. H. Cornett, president of the recently-organized firemen's band; Lionel H. Keene, manager of the Fox theater, where the show will be presented; Ellis B. Barrett, chairman of the board of firemasters; Mayor I. N. Ragsdale and Fire Chief John Terrell.

What is billed as the biggest and best midnight matinee show ever staged in Atlanta will be given at the Fox theater one minute past midnight, November 23 for the purpose of raising funds to meet the purchase price of instruments for the newly-organized Firemen's band, it was announced by J. H. Cornett, of Fire Company No. 10, president of the organization.

According to Mr. Cornett, plans have been worked out with Carter Barron, manager of the Fox, the benefit program to be the first midnight program ever staged at the Fox. The feature picture, "Min and Bill," the national farm and home hour. Dr. Soule will speak from Washington at approximately 1 p. m., eastern standard time. As president of the land-grant colleges and universities of the United States, he will speak on the subject: "Dealing with the work and progress of the land-grant colleges and universities."

WALTER M. RICHARDS, PAPER MERCHANT, DIES

Prominent Atlanta Man Was Lifelong Resident of This City.

Walter M. Richards, 57, senior partner of the S. P. Richards Paper Company, at 168-170 Central avenue, S. W., one of the best known firms in Atlanta, died suddenly at his residence in the Ponce de Leon apartments early Sunday morning. Mr. Richards was a prominent figure in business and social circles in Atlanta, where he was born and reared. He was born March 18, 1873, the son of S. P. Richards and Sara Van Valkenberg Richards. In 1848 the S. P. Richards Paper Company was founded by his father and upon his death it passed into the hands of Mr. Richards and his brother, Russell E. Richards. Walter Richards was a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club and was a graduate of Born's High. His early schooling was received at the Crew Street school. In addition to his brother, Russell E., he is survived by another brother, George A. Richards, local real estate man, and four sisters, Mrs. J. J. Sullivan, Mrs. I. R. Taylor, Mrs. W. B. Penfield, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mrs. Katherine R. Edwards, of Asheville, N. C.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning at a Spring Hill chapel with the Rev. Dr. E. M. Poter officiating. Interment will be in Oakland. H. M. Patterson & Son have arrangements in charge.

PARTY HEADQUARTERS CONTINUE VERBAL DUEL

Administration Policies Hit By George, Defended By Wood.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The dispute over administration policies and acts was continued today in statements issued at republican and democratic headquarters.

Representative Wood, chairman of the republican congressional committee, cited speeches by two former democratic presidential nominees in repeating his charge of a campaign to misrepresent the president. He said the administration "began to move a year ago in easing the shock of the stock market crash and in relieving unemployment," in challenging statements to the contrary by Alfred E. Smith and James M. Cox.

Senator George, of Georgia, said administration leaders in congress had failed to co-operate last spring with democratic efforts to combat unemployment. He pointed to the Wagner unemployment bill which passed the senate "only to be checked to death by the republican leadership in the house."

After saying the democrats would "go to the limit" to relieve unemployment, George concluded:

"The signs indicate that the voters have resolved to prevent the beneficiaries of special privilege from holding up the American people."

After enumerating "false charges" made against the administration by democrats, Wood concluded:

"I have too much faith in the good sense of the American people to believe they are going to hand over the legislative branch of the government to such leadership."

Stirring Tribute Paid Boris, Bride By Loyal Subjects

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—King Boris of Bulgaria, and his queen-bride today received the homage of from 60,000 to 70,000 of their subjects, who marched past the palace while the monarchs stood on a balcony.

Villagers, cabinet members, and members of the chamber of deputies participated in the reception. The pageant continued until the fatigue of Queen Joanna became evident, whereupon the police halted the parade. King Boris then invited the ministers and members of the presidium of the chamber of deputies to lunch.

Premier Llapcheff, heading the members of the government, made a speech welcoming the monarch home after his honeymoon. He said the

Police Have Hard Time Preventing Sunday Pictures

LAUREL, Miss., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Sheriff's officers had a hard time today trying to close Sunday moving picture shows at two local theaters, playing what at times looked like a game of tag with the management and film operators, but finally achieved their object.

Deputies attempting to stop performances sponsored by the American legion at the Arabian and Strand theaters, found that as fast as they arrested an operator that another was put in his place, with recruits being drawn from the ranks of substitutes and school boys who had previous experience.

Every time an operator started running the film, he was arrested and forced to make $500 bond.

The efforts of the deputies to stop the shows at the theaters went on for sometime, and drew nearly as much attention from the crowds as the screen productions.

The performances were finally stopped by the seizure of the films.

3 Drowned as Auto Plunges Into Lake

HICKORY, N. C., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Three Catawba county youths were drowned late last night when their automobile plunged down a steep embankment into the turbid waters of Lake Hickory near here. A fourth escaped when he swam to shore.

The dead: Cecil Killian, 18, and Ralph Killian, 20, sons of James Killian, Catawba county farmer; and Ralph Bumgarner, 20, a son of Allen Bumgarner.

John Brinkley, 21, the fourth man in the automobile, managed to free himself from the submerged car and swim to safety. Brinkley, in a critical condition due to exposure to cold when found by rescuers, was unable to give a coherent account of what occurred.

Persons at Rock Point inn, a roadhouse near the lake, heard Brinkley's cries and gave the alarm.

The four young men had been at the inn during the night and evidently were on their way home when the tragedy occurred.

Their automobile is believed to have run down the embankment when it was being turned around.

Mayor Thompson Slightly Improved

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson gained ground today in his fight to recover from an emergency appendicitis operation and while not out of danger, attending physicians regarded the outlook as a little more favorable.

The crisis will not be reached until tomorrow, said Dr. Milton M. Portis, one of the doctors in charge.

Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, after a visit, said the patient was in exceptionally good mood and had manifested much interest in the events incidental to the conclusion of the current political campaign.

Although Mayor Thompson was denied a request to scan the political reports in the newspapers, his secretary, Robert J. Lyman, announced that arrangements were being made to carry election returns to his bedside Tuesday night.

Special Articles Give Background Of Prolonged Fight in Prospect Over Interstate Power Regulation

BY G. GOULD LINCOLN.

(Copyright, 1936, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—When President Hoover, in his message to Congress in December, 1929, said there were interstate transactions in electric power "beyond the jurisdiction of the states," he was right.

For example, if an electric power producing company in Tennessee sells power in bulk to a distributing company in Alabama, the public utility commission in Alabama may fix the rate for which the electricity is resold to consumers in that state, but it cannot regulate the price charged by the producing company and paid by the distributor. Only the federal government, acting under authority of the interstate commerce clause of the constitution, may regulate that transaction.

The Alabama commission, in this hypothetical case, in fixing the rate charged by the distributing company in Alabama, must take into account the price paid the generator of the electricity in Tennessee. The state commission has no authority to determine whether that wholesale price is a fair price or is extortionate. It must, in effect, accept that price as a basis for figuring what is a fair charge made by the Alabama distributing company to the consumers. The supporters of federal regulations, among them Senator Clegg, insist that here is a loophole through which electrical companies may mulct the consuming public.

Other Loopholes. There are other loopholes through which electrical companies may advance their prices without the possibility of control by the state commissions. Holding and management companies present a field which, it is said, is making the task of regulation by state commission increasingly difficult.

A quarter of a century ago the interstate operation of electric companies was practically non-existent. The transmission of electric power in great volume for long distances was a dream of the future. The electric plant produced current in its immediate vicinity. All this is changed today. Net-works of wires carry electricity hundreds of miles. State boundaries vanish under such conditions. Take that great power project, the Hoover dam, formerly called Boulder dam. It is proposed to carry for 250 miles or more to Los Angeles.

Along with this development of the transmission of electric power for long distances have grown up the "holding company" and the "management company" in the field of public utilities. It is urged that these holding companies result in great economies. Overhead expenses are cut down. It is possible to make larger purchases of materials at much less cost. Joint management and supervision are easier than a series of managements.

These holding companies present a new problem in regulation of public utilities. Many states do not try to control them and other states which have sought to do so are confronted with the constitutional objection that they are engaged in interstate commerce. The argument is that in any event these holding companies could be regulated by state commissions only in regard to their operation within the individual state.

Hard to Regulate. The danger arising from holding companies to the individual consumer of electricity, according to Senator Clegg, lies in that it is impossible to bring about their regulation. They may, without regulation by the federal government, pad operating expenses, make contracts with affiliated companies for materials and services which are out of all proportion to the real value of the materials and services along to the consumer.

The senate took cognizance of the growing concentration of hydro-electric interests in the hands of a comparatively small group when it called upon the federal trade commission to investigate the so-called "power trust." The trade commission has been engaged in this work more than a year. It is going ahead as rapidly as it can to learn all the facts and to lay them out in a report. It is expected that the report of the commission will be of service to Congress when it comes to passing upon the proposal to place the control and supervision of interstate electric power in the hands of the federal power commission.

Principle Laid Down. The supreme court of the United States, in the Pennsylvania Natural Gas Company case, has laid down the principle that service to consumers is local in character and subject to regulation by the state public utility commissions until Congress shall legislate. If, for example, a company generating electricity in Wisconsin transports that power to Kansas and there distributes it, the rates charged by the company in Wisconsin to the consumers in Kansas may be regulated by the Kansas state commission. This is clearly interstate business. Yet the state commissions today are at liberty to regulate such business under the decree of the highest court.

In another case, that of the Kansas Natural Gas Company, the supreme court held that where a producing company sells to a distributing company in another state, the interstate business ceases with that transaction, and the actual sale of the distributing company to the consumers becomes intrastate business, although the commodity distributed has been transported from one state to another.

Under these decisions of the supreme court, applicable as they are to the electric power business, it is apparent that state public utility commissions have wide powers of regulation, if they see fit to use them, over power transmitted from one state to another in interstate business. The states today are regulating the electric power business so far as distribution to consumers is concerned, through agencies set up by the states. In a few of the states, regulation is by municipal ordinance. This is true of Iowa, for example. Other states, except South Dakota, Minnesota, Kentucky, Florida, Mississippi and Texas, regulate the power business through state commissions.

(The concluding article in this series will appear next Sunday.)

Arkansas imports 73.7 per cent of its total consumption; Missouri imports 47.5 per cent; Delaware imports 66.2 per cent; and Rhode Island, 25.9 per cent; Pennsylvania, 23 per cent; Massachusetts, 19.2 per cent; New Jersey, 10 per cent; and Maryland, including District of Columbia, 24.2 per cent. Some of the large exporters of electrical energy are Idaho, with 62.5 per cent of all its generated power going into interstate commerce; Vermont, 64.6 per cent; Maryland and the District of Columbia combined, 54 per cent; Indiana, 21.3 per cent; West Virginia, 54 per cent; South Carolina, 32.3 per cent; and Wisconsin, 18.4 per cent.

It is clear that the interstate transmission of power is not at all inconceivable, particularly when the individual states are considered. And further, the evidence is that the interstate power business is on the increase year by year. A memorandum from the federal trade commission indicates that within the last two years there has been an increase in interstate transmission of approximately 3,000,000,000 kilowatt hours. It is added that recent hookups show the amount will be substantially increased.

Supports Nominees. Because of the similarity of his name with other names involved in recent county political issues, Henry Woodfin McLarty, prominent Atlanta attorney, Saturday night asserted that he had received many inquiries from acquaintances as to "how to vote in the county commissioners' race" on November 4. In response, the attorney issued a statement in which he said:

"I am a democrat and have always supported the democratic nominees, and will vote for Paul Etheridge and the other commissioners who were nominated in the March primary. Let us continue to support the nominees of democratic primaries, thereby upholding the greatest safeguard of good government and our tradition of white supremacy."

LOCAL ICE INDUSTRY TO GO "ON THE AIR"

Beginning at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continuing every day at the same time over a period of 17 weeks, the ice industry of Atlanta will go "on the air" over radio station WGST. It was announced Sunday. Housewives will be entertained with a program of orchestra music, directly from the New York studios of the Columbia Broadcasting Company, by Ice Refrigeration, Inc., 292 Peachtree street. Short talks of general interest regarding food preservation and the relative value of the various forms of refrigeration will be featured.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION INDORSES PENSIONS

Local Typographers Pass Resolution Attacking Deception Campaign.

The Atlanta Typographical Union, composed of printers of the three Atlanta daily newspapers and many of the commercial printing shops of the city, met in regular session Sunday afternoon and passed resolutions reading as follows:

"That Atlanta Typographical Union go on record as endorsing the constitutional amendment pertaining to the pensioning of employees of Fulton county, and deploring the deception being used by certain institutions to defeat this humane measure. We further call to the attention that the enacting law plainly reads that no elective officer or any clerk or deputy under said elective officer, comes under the provisions of the amendment and that the law only applies, in the most, to the common laborers and policemen with services of 25 years. And we further ask that the voters go to the polls and vote for this meritorious law and rebuke the efforts of false propagandists that are trying to make it appear that it is the high-salaried courthouse attaches that are to be benefited in order to fool an honest electorate."

More than 200 members were present at the meeting, and not a vote was cast against the resolutions.

Other routine matter was disposed of.

Dies By Gas.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 2. (AP)—Harwood E. Ryan, 48, New York insurance expert and accountant, was found dead today of gas in a bathroom of his home here. Physicians said he had taken his life while in a fit of despondency. His business affairs were in good condition, his wife said.

Annoyed By "Cracks," Youth Shoots "Kidder"

"Bright cracks" alleged to have been made about his girl friend so angered Ben Williams, 19, of 495 Calhoun street, that he went to his home, obtained a pistol and shot the "bright cracks" in the hip, police reports Sunday show. Homer Wilkins, 21, of 627 Simpson street, then was taken to Grady hospital, and young Williams to the city jail, where he was charged with disorderly conduct.

The shooting occurred in a filling station at Simpson and Vine streets shortly after 3 o'clock. After he had been wounded, police say, Wilkins agreed to apologize for the "cracks" and Williams phoned for the ambulance and patrol wagon. Hospital attaches say Wilkins' wound is only superficial.

Well Blows In.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Gas well No. 24 was added to the Jackson field today, with the blowing in of the Pearl River Gas and Oil Company's pate No. 2.

HILL IS SPEAKER AT NEWNAN RITES

Justice H. Warner Hill, veteran member of the supreme court of Georgia, was the principal speaker at the eighteenth anniversary exercises held Sunday at the new $200,000 Methodist church of Newnan, by the Bible class of William G. Post, prominent Coweta citizen.

Introduced by Dr. C. N. Lipham, pastor, as "one of the really great men of the south," and placed in the same category of judicial eminence as the former Judge W. Y. Atkinson, Justice Hill's talk was heard by one of the largest audiences ever assembled in a Newnan church.

The influence of the Christian home was the theme of the jurist's address. He declared that one of the most compensating tasks ever to confront man was that of home-building and paid a glowing tribute to the home-loving family, declaring that "only a home in heaven is more desirable than a home on earth."

A large number of persons attending the services were from outside towns, many being from Atlanta and Grantville.

Lapses mean Losses

A few negatives to make a positive future—and a financially happy one for your family.

Don't let your Life Insurance lapse:—

During periods when business is recovering you need every dollar's protection life insurance offers—and more. It is the financial security of your family now and in years to come. And if you allow lapses now, it will cost more to replace it later assuming you can get it later.

Don't take your cash surrender value:—

—the money thus obtained won't last long and when it's gone one of the bulwarks you have built up against the unknown is gone.

Avoid Policy Loans:—

—unless some genuine emergency arises and you arrange to repay the debt promptly. Such loans cut down your capital—often result in your policies yielding your beneficiaries little or nothing.

Be careful about exchanging old policies for new:—

—such exchanges are rarely of value, and sometimes result in loss both to policy holder and beneficiaries. If you are considering such changes, ask your life underwriter about them.

Citizens and Southern National believes in Life Insurance. The experience of our trust officers in handling thousands of estates, has convinced us that it is an essential element both for the welfare of estates and the future prosperity of heirs.

THE full measure of hauling-value offered by the Ford 1½-ton truck is available to those who need a truck with large loading-space. In addition to the chassis with 131½-inch wheelbase, there is one with 157-inch wheelbase, especially planned for carrying light but bulky loads without a red flag fluttering behind.

This increased length permits the use of large bodies for many specialized purposes on the Ford truck; among them bus and van bodies, industrial bodies to accommodate material of unusual length or articles of great bulk, and many others.

Thus, to a larger number of businesses, the long, reliable, low-cost service of the Ford truck becomes directly available. Records of service in these new fields, as in every business where the Ford truck is in daily use, show that it offers a value far in excess of the price.

Chassis features, which contribute to reliability, strength and performance, are the spiral bevel gear rear axle, which has a straddle-mounted pinion; large, fully enclosed mechanical brakes; 4-speed transmission; heavy front axle and spring; option of two rear-axle gear-ratios; and dual rear wheels, available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies are offered for many purposes, with a choice of open or closed cabs. All are equipped with Triplex shatter-proof glass windshields. Examine this truck at the showroom of your Ford dealer. You can find the nearest dealer in your "Where to Buy It" Classified Telephone Directory under the name Ford.

LIQUOR TRAFFICKERS ARE SHOT TO DEATH

Minor Characters in Chicago
Underworld Found Slain
in Speakeasy.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(P)—Frank Surlo, 21, an "William" "Smooth" Surlo, 35, minor hoodlums who trafficked in liquor with an occasional flyer into hijacking, were shot to death today in a speakeasy, they conducted on the northwest side.

Their bodies, punctured by pistol slugs, were found on the blood-stained floor of their establishment amidst a clutter of stoves and bottles, many of them shattered in the struggle that apparently preceded the shooting.

Frank Surlo, proprietor of a grocery store below the beer flat, told police he had been awakened shortly before dawn by the sounds of a wild scuffle that ended in the firing of about a dozen shots.

Crash Kills Three.

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—(P)—Harry Taggart, of Toronto, a former air mail pilot, and his two passengers, Jean and Kathleen McCall, of Englewood, Ont., were killed today when the plane in which Taggart was stunting crashed from a height of 100 feet at an airport on Dufferin street.

gion—so that other sufferers will try it and get the relief I have gotten.

"I was a stamper during the years of the gold fever in Alaska, and spent 20 odd years in that country, serving as United States Marshal part of the time and later was Chief of Police of Juneau. When I returned to Seattle in 1918, the previous years of exposure and rough living had taken their toll and I commenced to suffer with rheumatic pains, constipation and indigestion, that weakened and pulled me down so much that I was afraid sometimes I'd have to give up entirely.

"After I had tried a lot of different medicines without any noteworthy benefits, I started Sargon, and that was the beginning of my present fine health. It built me up wonderfully, gave me a splendid appetite without a return of indigestion. I don't suffer with rheumatic pains like I did and I feel as well and strongly as I did back in the good old 'gold' days in Alaska. Sargon Pills have freed me of constipation for the first time in years. I'm always recommending the Sargon treatment to my friends."

The above statement was made recently by Emory J. Sliter, 2321 Fourth Ave., Seattle, Wash. Mr. Sliter is former United States Marshal, and is now Inspector for the Pacific Steamship Co.

Officials Commend 'Crime School' Proposal

City and county officials and peace officers have announced their wholehearted concurrence in plans for establishment in Atlanta of a school for the detection of crime, at which policemen, marshals, detectives, sheriffs, deputies and others involved in the detection and prosecution of criminals would study modern methods of combating lawlessness. Above are pictured leading officials who are interested in the movement: Mayor-elect James L. Key, upper left. Upper right, Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, who has always displayed keen enthusiasm for such methods, is shown talking with Solicitor Claude Smith of the Stone Mountain circuit. Below (left to right) are Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Solicitor John S. McClelland of the city criminal court, and Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole.

"CRIME SCHOOL" URGED FOR CITY

country." Solicitor-General Smith pointed out the need of better efficiency in obtaining and preserving evidence for the courts, and said that a school of this type "is needed badly and should be established in the form of a miniature Scotland Yard."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Hudson said that their experience in court work has shown them the need of training officers to understand the value of evidence and how to preserve it. Numerous court cases have been lost for the state by the ignorance of the officers who first handled the cases, they declared.

"It is not the fault of the officers," said Mr. Hudson. "It is purely because the policemen have not been trained properly, and they innocently destroy evidence in cases because they do not know better. They should be taught, and have it drilled in them."

Both solicitors cited comparatively recent cases in which solutions of crimes have been impossible because of the innocent destruction by officers of important clues. These cases involved the handling of homicide weapons before fingerprint experts reached the scene.

Solicitor John S. McClelland, of criminal court of Atlanta, heartily endorsed the idea of establishing the crime school, and said that an important item in the course of instruction should certainly be lessons on the securing of confessions. He is troubled frequently by cases where officers obtain confessions by ignorantly offering to let one defendant go if the other will shoulder the blame. Such confessions are absolutely void in court because of the promises held out to obtain them, Mr. McClelland said.

Training in the use of firearms was also urged as a part of the proposed instruction.

Key Stresses Value.

"A crime detection school would be a most valuable acquisition to the Atlanta police department," declared Mayor-elect Key. "The school could draw on many well-informed people as occasional instructors, and could rely on the experienced members of the department as teachers. The value of the school would come not through occasional lectures alone, but through steady plugging at regular and frequent sessions in which the officers would be given the benefit of experience and learning."

"There are schools and schools," the mayor-elect said. "Any present instruction given the policemen could be merged into the class work, the present instruction relating to city ordinances, etc. A sure enough school of instruction should be planned so as to discuss worth while things and make the lessons interesting."

"There is a man in the department who would make one capable instructor in certain lines, and I refer to Detective Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant, who recently performed one of the best police jobs I have ever heard of, when he marked a brace belonging to a burglar and later found the same brace at the scene of a safebreaking. Now that is real detective work."

Cover Metropolitan Area.

"The Atlanta police department, through such a school of instruction, could be made one of the outstanding departments in the south. The school certainly should take in the entire metropolitan area, for we had just as well begin to act and think in terms of the whole community. We now face that in respect to sewers, and a similar problem in regard to schools will soon be before us. Crime does not stop at any imaginary borders. The quicker the whole community idea gets into the consciousness of the people, the easier will be the solution of many problems."

"We should capitalize everything we have. We are not getting dividends we are entitled to, and, in connection with this angle of the matter, I would say that it would be a great advantage for us to establish the reputation of having the most efficient police force. That would be a real asset. The school might and I wish it would spread to other cities in Georgia."

"Swift and unerring detection of crime and the prompt punishment of it form one of the greatest deterrents of crime we have. The fact that the United States government, with its highly trained investigators, goes to great lengths to punish infractions of the currency and postal laws, makes such offenses indeed rare."

"I will lend my hearty co-operation and support to the idea. I, if anyone, am in favor of progress."

See the Greatest Needs in the

"One of the greatest needs in the detection and conviction of crime is a corps of trained officers, specially instructed in the value of evidence that can be introduced in court," said

Officials Cite Need Of School in Atlanta

James L. Key, mayor-designate of the borough of Atlanta—A real crime detection school would aid in making the Atlanta police department the outstanding one in the south.

Claude C. Smith, solicitor-general, Stone Mountain circuit—Numerous cases have been lost in court because officers had not been taught the value and preservation of evidence.

John S. McClelland, solicitor, criminal court of Atlanta—It is one of the crying needs of this city from the standpoint of law enforcement.

James L. Beavers, chief of police, Atlanta—I will co-operate in anything to aid the efficiency of the department.

A. Lamar Poole, chief of detectives, Atlanta—The school will be a constructive effort in the right direction.

John H. Hudson, assistant solicitor-general, Fulton county—We are 50 years behind the times in police training in this day when criminals are educated.

Solicitor-General Claude Smith, of the Stone Mountain circuit.

"This particularly applies to preservation of fingerprints, measurements, mounds of tracks, and prompt and continuous attention of one or more officers to a case until it is worked out. Most of our local police officers are brave, conscientious and honest, and are devoted to their work, but they are for the most part taken from various walks of life and are not familiar with the rules of criminal evidence. Consequently they are not, as a general rule, qualified to prepare a case for trial."

"The idea of establishing a training school where at least a part of the police force can be given detailed instruction along this line should receive hearty endorsement from all good citizens. There have been numerous cases in court where officers have handled pistols and guns, not knowing the value of fingerprints or the necessity of preserving such important evidence."

"Such a school here should be in the form of a miniature Scotland Yard. In this famous organization, new officers are trained for a year, and then are put out with an older and experienced officer in a probation period. If the recruit measures up to standards and he must have a high school education to begin with, he is accepted as a full-fledged member of the force."

Constructive Development.

Police departments of the various railroads entering Atlanta already realize the necessity of a school of crime detection, and have begun to discuss the needs and feasibility of such a school, according to Assistant Solicitor-General John H. Hudson, of Fulton superior court.

Mr. Hudson said he recently addressed a meeting of the Atlanta section of the Protective Section, American Railway Association, on the subject of training for crime detection, and that he will soon begin preparation of a textbook on the methods of obtaining evidence and preparing a case for court.

"The establishment of a school of crime detection in Atlanta's metropolitan area, in which all officers, state, county and city, would participate, would be the most constructive development with reference to increased efficiency in law enforcement organizations within 10 or 20 years," Mr. Hudson said.

How Cases Are Lost.

"There have been numerous cases lost in Fulton superior court because of lack of rudimentary training on the part of the police officers. Today crime is organized, and criminals are educated in technicalities of the law. They know the laws being violated and the loopholes. They know the officers working on the beats, and obtain information as to what hours they are on duty at certain points. Before blowing safes they make special studies of streets, numbers, night watchmen, the number of police on the beat and the officers' habits and customs. They figure out the probabilities of detection."

"We need a school where the officers could meet at regular hours and receive instruction from experienced prosecuting attorneys, experienced officers who are educated in the ways of criminals, and where rudimentary training could be given in the technical requirements of the law both as the men instructed so they will do better, Mr. McClelland said.

Declaring that he will co-operate in giving what time is needed to properly instruct officers on evidence, laws, etc., Mr. McClelland said that some sort of school is needed badly. Officers should be instructed in Bertillon measurements, and more attention should be paid to this system, he said. Training in the gathering of evidence should be backed up by instruction in the rudimentary state laws, in addition to present instructions given the officers on city ordinances, he added.

PICTURESQUE RAS CROWNED KING

too small, in spite of recent additions, for the throngs which clamored for admission. Their majesties found difficulty in making their way through the crowd to the inner sanctuary, where the copic archbishop performed the religious rites and ceremonies. The atmosphere was murky, almost suffocating with incense and the thick, stifling smoke of tallow candles.

Small of stature, thin, frail, with delicate, almost feminine features, Ras Tafari nevertheless assumed a look of great dignity and solemnity as the archbishop placed the crown upon his head. Yet the emperor seemed dwarfed by Queen Waziru Menen, who is of Amazon proportions.

"God has appointed you to rule with justice," intoned the archbishop, as he crowned his liege. Then spoke the pontiff: "Gird the sword on your loins, and rule in peace. May the Lord God, supreme ruler of men, bless and glorify your reign, and may He even keep you and your consort in His bosom."

The coronation was followed by a dance of the high priests in front of the church, to the time of low, rhythmic chants, accented by monotonous drumbeats and the clash of cymbals. The priests, bearded and mantled, swayed their bodies violently to and fro according to the peculiar Ethiopian ritual, and waved their long, gold-headed "prayer sticks" like wands.

After the royal pair left the church they were driven, amidst fresh outbursts of applause, to a great, lavishly decorated coronation dais in the big square in front of the palace. In front of them, tethered to the platform and growling like captive beasts in a Roman arena, were a quintet of fierce-looking lions with beautiful golden brown manes, guardians of the throne of Ethiopia and national symbols of power.

The ruling princes and chiefs from the outlying provinces were admitted to their presence in processional order. As they approached the rulers they prostrated themselves, touching the earth with their foreheads as an indication of their submission and homage. Beside the sovereigns stood the crack guardsmen of the palace, tall, stalwart youths, brilliantly uniformed, who guard their monarch's lives and lead the way into battle.

To signalize his coronation and spread peace and good-will among the country's 10,000,000 population, the king released several hundred political and criminal offenders and also conferred the Order of the Conquering Lion of Judah upon a number of cabinet members, princes and tribal chiefs.

The most striking of the day's festivities was a gargantuan open-air banquet of raw meat and "tej" or wine, made from fermented honey and flavored with herbs, which the emperor gave to 25,000 of his tribesmen. Five thousand cattle were slaughtered on the spot for the feast.

The young emperor considered it a day of triumph. At the end of the ceremonies, he fell on his knees and gave thanks to God. Abyssinia has been a Christian country for 1,000 years.

BAPTISTS HEAR OWEN AND NEFF

Noted Minister and Former Texas Governor Bring Meeting to End.

Christianity is the only solution of present world problems, including the spread of sovietism, Dr. William Russell Owen, noted Baptist minister of Asheville, N. C., told the 2,100 delegates to the All-Southern Baptist Student conference at the First Baptist church Sunday.

Dr. Owen's address shared the interest of the students Sunday with another by Pat Neff, former governor of Texas and president of the Texas state Baptist convention, who spoke on "Christianity the Kingdom's Necessity."

The conference which began Thursday night at the First Baptist church closed Sunday following the afternoon session and students were departing last night for their various campuses in 17 southern states and the District of Columbia.

Downey Presides.
R. Pendleton Downey, a student at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., presided at the morning and afternoon sessions Sunday and Lee Knowles, student at Mercer University, Macon, gave the parting prayer.

W. Herschel Ford, a ministerial student at Wake Forest college, North Carolina, and John Hall Jones, state student secretary for Florida, Gainesville, also were on Sunday's program. Ford discussed "The Student's Christian Duty in the College Church" and Jones talked of "The Student's Christian Duty in the College Community."

Dr. Harry Clark, president of Judson college, Marion, Ala., was on the afternoon program and addressed the students on "Transformed But Not Conformed."

Panic of 'Fear of Man.'
"The world today has fallen upon a panic of fear and unfortunately it is the panic of the fear of man—the fear of each other. Everybody is distrustful of his neighbor today and nations are just as jealous as they can be of each other and still maintain the equilibrium of world peace," said Dr. Owen, speaking on "The Student Crusaders" and taking for a text, "Lord—Me."

"The student—often the radical student—is behind the present world upheaval in nearly every case," said Dr. Owen. "I predict that the only way out of our dilemma lies in the awakening of the Christian students of this generation."

"Sovietism is directly opposed to the present world economic order and they would substitute community sharing in property for private ownership. Christianity is the only solution in sight with its teaching of stewardship, instead of selfish administration of private fortunes. The administration of money, unselfishly for the good of the greatest number, is Jesus' conception of wealth. If a Christian student in his own standing of world conditions cannot interpret the heart-beat of Jesus to a bewildered and cold-hearted world, there are dark days ahead for the human race. The Christian student is the key to applied and practical Christianity for world conversion.

"Saint Paul was a typical university student of his day and his miraculous conversion saved Europe from the paganism of Rome. Moses at the University of Heliopolis viewed the oppression of his poor people in their slavery and converted his royal learning to the leadership of a people into a new land of promise, which gave to the world the Ten Commandments, the form of all jurisprudence and law, and preserved for the human race the idea of revealed religion."

Student Facing God's Call.

"Isaiah was the Robert Louis Stevenson of King Ezziah's court, the Thomas Jefferson of the early colonies, the master of prose and style in Judea and in the year of his patron's death he came face to face with God—I saw also the Lord," Isaiah declared. This conference is the challenge of the student to stand face to face with the divine element in the events of life. The fear of God is needed by the world today more than the fear of the face of man. The fear of God is the beginning of wisdom; the fear of man is lack of common sense; the fear of God makes men of courage; the fear of man makes us cowards."

"Some one writes, 'To fear God is not to be afraid of God, perfect love casts out fear.' The fear of man enslaves; the fear of God sets us free; the fear of man sterilizes; the fear of God vitalizes; the fear of man makes a slave; the fear of God, a son." The fear of man causes us to fold the wings of the soul, blind the eye of vision, belittles the spirit, makes the heart to hesitate, intimidates, enslaves and causes us to walk by sight and not by faith. But the fear of God emancipates the soul, lifts the wings of the spirit to fly to the hills whence cometh our help, opens the eyes to see, encourages, empowers and gives to man a resting place on the bosom of infinity and omnipotence. The fear of God leaves us reverent to every day problems; the fear of man leaves us bewildered and flippant.

"If there is something in you that lures you to the Highest; that makes you feel at home in the presence of the Highest; and if you find within you some aspiration eager always to attain to the Highest, then religion has left spiritual survival sufficiently strong to inspire you to be practical crusaders for Christ."

"Man does not live by bread alone; a man lives by his beliefs; man does not live by bloody war but he lives by the bounties of life, not by boasting but by the benedictions that flow out of the heart of God."

Student Crusaders.

"Whenever crusaders have been permanent movements in the upward march of the race, the background of the college student can always be found—Luther the Wittenberg professor and the learned Erasmus back of the reformation—John and Charles Wesley with the Oxford University background crusading to give the world its greatest permanent revival in the Wesleyan movement and Methodist. The modern missionary crusades and great social upheavals benefit mankind have come at last out of the student and life. The college really has been the center of the great crusades."

"Commander Richard Byrd by his explorations has issued a challenge to the young Christian manhood of his generation to match his sacrifices for science, with sacrifices befitting the cause of Christ. Colonel Lindbergh and a score of other daring youths have inspired us to wait for the consecrated student that could startle the world in a life so dedicated to the ideals of the cross of Christ that religion will again have restored to its rightful field the heroism and sacrifices of the martyrs and the fathers and the saints. The rallying rendezvous is the cross."

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR JAMES V. RAWLS

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon for James V. Rawls, prominent young Atlanta attorney, who died late Saturday night at a private hospital after a brief illness. Services will be conducted from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, and interment will take place in Crown Hill cemetery.

Mr. Rawls was born in Ocala, Fla., in 1900, and received his education in the public schools of that city and of Punta Gorda, having been graduated from the Punta Gorda high school, following which he entered Pierce's School of Administration in Philadelphia. He came to Atlanta in August, 1924, and became connected with The Constitution's circulation department. Within a short time he was promoted to the position of cashier of that department, in which capacity he served for more than a year, acquiring many friends who regarded him in high esteem.

While working for The Constitution Mr. Rawls attended the Atlanta Law school and was admitted to the bar in 1926. He was associated with the law firm of Bynum & Copeland at the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frances Rawls, the former Frances Hopkins, whom he married in 1925. Mr. Rawls was born in Putnam county, Georgia, May 13, 1852, to Dr. and Mrs. Sterling Johnson Foster. He attended the Alabama Male college and later Davidson college, North Carolina. His legal career began in the office of General H. C. Thomas, Union Springs, Ala., in 1870. Later he pursued the study of law in an institution here and launched his long period of public activity that included one term in the Missouri legislature and the presidency of the Central Arkansas & Eastern Railway, the Helena (Ark.) Water Company, the Haywood (Ark.) Farm Company, and the Prairie Townsite Company. His widow, a son, Robert M., of Helena, Ark., and two brothers, Dr. Sterling Foster, of Birmingham, and Hugh Foster, of Atlanta, survive.

Hugh Foster, brother of Robert Magruder Foster, formerly well known in Missouri judicial circles, is deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta. Mr. Foster resides at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

JAMES L. CONYERS PASSES SUDDENLY

James L. Conyers, 59, of 1031 McLennan avenue, N. E., brother of the late Ben J. Conyers, attorney, died suddenly in Jacksonville Sunday, after being stricken while on his "run" as a member of the railway mail service.

He is survived by two brothers, Charis Conyers, of Brunswick, Ga., and Sam T. Conyers, of Atlanta, and one sister, Mrs. F. L. Key, of Green Cove Springs, Fla. The body will be brought to Atlanta today. Services and interment will be held at Carversville Tuesday morning.

ROBERT M. FOSTER, 78, PASSES AT ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Robert Magruder Foster, former circuit judge and prominent for half a century in political and civil affairs, died here late yesterday of heart disease at the age of 78.

He was born in Putnam county, Georgia, May 13, 1852, to Dr. and Mrs. Sterling Johnson Foster. He attended the Alabama Male college and later Davidson college, North Carolina. His legal career began in the office of General H. C. Thomas, Union Springs, Ala., in 1870. NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Police today boarded the steamship Invincible on its arrival here, but found no one on it that answered to the description of two supposed stowaways wanted by Salem (N. J.) authorities in connection with the killing of J. W. McCausland, a paymaster.

Rain to Succeed Bright, Clear Weather Today

The clear, crisp weather enjoyed by Atlantans Sunday will give way today to warmer and cloudier conditions, with just a possibility of light rains during the afternoon, according to the weather forecast for this vicinity. Rain likewise may be expected in this area during the night, but Tuesday's forecast is for generally fair weather. The range of temperatures in Atlanta Sunday was from a low of 34 degrees to a maximum of 56, with no precipitation. Today's average temperatures were expected to be somewhat higher due to prevalence of southerly winds and lowering clouds.

MRS. ORA GRAINGER IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. Ora Grainger, widow of Geris D. Grainger, died Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Morrison, 250 East 11th street. The body was taken to Franklin at 9 o'clock Sunday night for services and interment this afternoon.

Before her marriage Mrs. Grainger was Miss Ora Walton, of Franklin, Ky., and her husband was one of the famed Orphan Brigade of Kentucky during the Civil War. For the past few years she has made her home in Atlanta.

In addition to Mrs. Morrison she is survived by another daughter, Mrs. A. J. Morrissey, of Nashville, Tenn.; three grandsons, Ralph Morrissey, Frank and Geris Morrison; one sister, Miss Bartlett Walton, of Bowling Green, Ky.

Funeral services for Jefferson Davis Bellah, 71, retired official of the J. M. High Company, who died at his winter home in West Palm Beach, Fla., Saturday afternoon, will be conducted at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in West Palm Beach. He was born in Barnesville and removed to Atlanta while still a youth. For the past 35 years he had been connected with the High company, where, as one of the pioneers in the development of that concern, he was regarded as one of the best merchandising experts in the south.

Mr. Bellah, known affectionately as "Jeff" to all High employees, was a member of the Grace Methodist church for more than 30 years, serving as a trustee and steward during his period of membership. He was an active member of the Wesley Brotherhood, and gave much to charity in a quiet, unassuming way. His Atlanta home was at 647 Boulevard, Northeast.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jessie Bellah, and one sister, Mrs. Willie Bellah, of Washington, D. C.

HIGH-TONED BANDIT ROBS MAN OF $63

A white holdup man who utilizes a negro chauffeur while carrying out his misdeeds was at work in Atlanta late Sunday night, according to a story told to Detectives R. L. Burden and J. J. Chester by T. H. McCalla, of 212 Page avenue, N. E., who said he was loser by $63.

McCalla stated that he had just alighted from a street car at Ponce de Leon, and Springdale road when a white man riding in an automobile piloted by a negro chauffeur drove up beside him. He was forced into the car, he said, knocked in the head and robbed of $63. After being ridden about for a few minutes he was thrust out onto the pavement, he reported. His wounds were not serious.

Admiral Retires.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Admiral Charles F. Hughes today retired from naval service, having reached the statutory retirement age of 64. He was succeeded as chief of naval operations recently by Admiral William V. Pratt.

This is my first time to offer for any public office, and I am now seeking the office of County Commissioner for no personal gain or profit to myself, but for the purpose of seeing that Fulton County's affairs be run honestly, economically, and without waste. I am free from all connections, rings, and cliques; have no subdivisions to develop, nor any other fields in which to sow the county's money nor the citizens' taxes. I have never wasted my own earnings and do not propose to waste the county's revenue. Only my friends who are vitally interested in this platform will represent me at the polls.

THREE GEORGIA CITIES RETAIN POPULATION

Figures for Avera, Tallulah Falls, Covington Same as 1920.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Three cities in Georgia had the same population in 1930 as they did in 1920, final figures for Georgia just issued by the census bureau show.

The total population of the state is given as 2,908,506, which represents an increase of 12,674, or 0.4. This, the bureau says, is the smallest decennial increase the state has ever shown.

The three incorporated towns and cities showing the same population this year as they did in 1920 were: Avera, in Jefferson county, with a population of 258 in 1920 and 1930; Tallulah Falls, in the north Georgia mountains of Rabun county, had 105, Tallulah Falls is the site of a school for mountain boys and girls; Covington, in Newton county, listed 3,203 in both 1920 and 1930 and while it covers the area in the Covington city limits, a number of persons live just outside the limits and in the textile communities nearby.

At the first census of the United States in 1790, Georgia was found to have a population of 82,548, and ranked as the eleventh in population among the 13 original states. During most of its subsequent history, the census bureau says, its population has increased rapidly. Even during the decade of the Civil War, the rate of increase was 49 per cent. On the basis of its 1930 population, Georgia will rank as the fourteenth of the 48 states.

The bureau adds: "All of the increase in the population of the state during the past decade was in or near the urban centers. The rural population declined sharply. Atlanta, the capital and largest city in Georgia, has a population in the city proper of 270,336, representing an increase of 49,160, or 21.8 per cent, over its population in 1920.

"Savannah, which was the largest city in the state before the census of 1880, now ranks as second city, with a population of 85,024. Augusta, with a population of 60,342, is now the third city in the state, and Macon is fourth, with 53,829 inhabitants in the city proper. Columbus is the fifth city in the state, and the remaining cities of 10,000 or more, in order of population, are Rome, La Grange, Athens, Waycross, Albany, Brunswick, Valdosta, Decatur, Thomasville and Griffin. The three last-named cities first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930."

As for the population of Atlanta, the listing of which in the above names for new both protests and law suits, the census bureau says in a press release:

"An act of the Georgia state legislature, approved August 17, 1929, provides for the establishment of the 'municipality of Atlanta,' including in addition to the city or borough of Atlanta proper, the city or borough of Decatur, and several other incorporated and unincorporated areas. The population of this 'municipality' is 644,045.

"Georgia has 161 counties, of which six have been organized since 1920." The bureau says in a review of county population. "The organization of these new counties affected the boundaries and areas of 12 other counties in the state. A great majority of the counties whose boundaries remained unchanged declined in population between 1920 and 1930. A few counties, however, showed a substantial increase in population. The greatest percentage of increase was in Chattahoochee county, which includes some of the industrial area surrounding the city of Columbus. Large increases were shown by De Kalb and Fulton counties, minority of the city of Atlanta is located. Other counties listed as showing good increases included Catoosa, Upson and Muscogee.

SEN. GEORGE LAUDS SCOUT MOVEMENT

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Senator Walter F. George, in an address Sunday afternoon as the chief speaker at a Girl Scouts rally, characterized the scout movement as one conducive to developing the old frontier spirit, a spirit without which, he declared, civilization cannot endure.

It is, the speaker said, one of the modern educational agencies which has been evolved to replace the environment which ended with the passing of the frontier, an environment under which this country developed its robust mental, physical and moral qualities.

As with individuals, governments also now feel the lack of the pioneer spirit, Senator George said. Before the World War, "the trail was so well blazed that it was known to all the parliaments of the world." But the trails were swept away by the war, Senator George said, "and the legislative bodies on both sides of the Atlantic now lack confidence because the trails have not been blazed. The scouts have not blazed the trails, and the parliaments don't know where to find the springs, and they don't know where to pitch their camps."

The speaker added that he was not sure that business, too, was not affected by a similar lack of trail blazing.

Statistics remained unchanged declined in population between 1920 and 1930. A few counties, however, showed a substantial increase in population. The greatest percentage of increase was in Chattahoochee county, which includes some of the industrial area surrounding the city of Columbus. Large increases were shown by De Kalb and Fulton counties, minority of the city of Atlanta is located. Other counties listed as showing good increases included Catoosa, Upson and Muscogee.

APPALACHIAN TRAIL CLUB IS ORGANIZED

Evert B. Stone, of Gainesville, Named President at Meeting in Dahlonega.

DAHLONEGA, Ga., Nov. 2.—The Appalachian Trail Club of Georgia was organized here Saturday night with an enrollment of 30 members composed of enthusiastic hikers from Gainesville, Blairsville, Atlanta, Decatur, Athens, Covington and Dahlonega and the first official hike of the club was held Sunday from Neel Gap to the summit of Blood mountain.

Evert B. Stone, Jr., assistant state forester, at Gainesville, called the meeting to order. He explained that only recently had the Georgia-to-Maine mountain trail for hikers been established but that the trail further north had been in existence for years and had proven popular. He said that the trail keeps to the crest of the Appalachian mountains from one end to the other but that nowhere is there more real wilderness and more beautiful scenic grandeur than on the Georgia division which follows the Blue Ridge from the North Carolina line to Mount Oglethorpe, its official terminus.

Charles N. Elliott, of the Georgia forest service, gave a graphic picture of the Georgia division of the trail. Mr. Elliott has been one of the most enthusiastic workers for the trail.

Interesting features of the program were talks by three scouts of Gainesville, the first hikers to cover the 115 miles of Georgia's trail after it had been blazed by Roy Ozmer, the official trail-blazer. Scouts Byron Mitchell, Jim E. Lewis and John Newton, of Gainesville, concluded their hike and were honored for their feat at the dedication of Mt. Oglethorpe.

Bonell H. Stone, Blairsville, took the floor to dedicate the trail. He said that the transformation that had taken place in the Blue Ridge region of Georgia by the construction of good roads and called attention to the thousands of Georgians that are going to Neel Gap to enjoy the Vogel state park and now with the opening of the skyline trail Georgia is beginning to appreciate and enjoy its magnificent mountains.

Dr. Charles H. Hersh, of Appalachian forestry experiment station, now assigned to work in north Georgia, said that the United States forest service had always been willing to co-operate with trail clubs. He gave an interesting sketch of his experiences on a hike of the Great Smoky Mountains Hiking Club, of Knoxville.

Miss Mary Cresswell, of the Georgia College of Agriculture, expressed belief that the trail afforded the opportunity for hiking that a great many people were looking for.

The club was organized by the election of Evert B. Stone, Gainesville, president; Henry Estes, Gainesville, vice president; Milton Hardy, Gainesville, secretary-treasurer. Bonell H. Stone, Blairsville, was chosen one of three counselors, others to be named later. Charles N. Elliott, Jr., Covington, was made historian.

The three first Boy Scouts to become members of the club were those who made the first hike of the Georgia trail and the first Girl Scout to become a member in Miss Nancy D. Bower, of Atlanta.

An exhibit of scouting equipment and pictures of the trail was held at the Zimmer lodge where the meeting took place.

Kentuckian Dies.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 2.—(AP)—G. A. Eversole, 77, of Harlan, Ky., father of Virgil Eversole, minority floor leader of the 1930 general assembly, died at the Kentucky Baptist hospital here today. His son was at his bedside.

Georgian, 51, Achieves Ambition By Winning Fiddler's Contest

BY MRS. HUGH TURNER.

McDONOUGH, Ga., Nov. 2.—"I had a burnin' in my heart a long time to win first prize for Henry county in the state fiddlers' convention," said Joe Collins, state champion today when he was receiving the congratulations of his friends.

Last night in the Henry county courthouse, several hundred friends and admirers gathered to do honor to the two Henry county men who are state champions this year. Joe Collins, 51, is first state champion fiddler and Bill Willard is champion banjo picker. Each has been winner for several years in the county contests and has carried off various state prizes.

Joe Collins has won seven out of the eight contests he has entered. These awards have all been cash and have ranged from $10 to $50. He has secured a smaller cash prize, but an equal amount of glory covers his name.

Joe Collins has played the violin since he was 26 years old. He has never owned an instrument. "I wanted to play the first time I ever heard a fiddle when I was 13 years old. I have never had a lesson, but I can play anything I ever heard. The first time I ever heard was 'Hell Broke Loose In Georgia.' A friend always lends me a fiddle and I can always play when I get time."

In 1928, Mr. Collins won third prize at the state convention and second prize at the county convention. His first contest he entered was about 15 years ago when he won first place in the county convention. For six years also he has won first place in a contest staged in Locust Grove.

The prize-winning piece this year was entitled, "Katie Hill." Mr. Collins has composed several pieces. Among these are "Money Suits Me," with which he hopes to win in the national convention, which will be held in Atlanta next year.

In 1922, Bill Willard met Joe Collins at the state convention. Since that time they have played together and have, in fact, become inseparable. They form the Henry County String band. They are in great demand at family reunions, picnics and parties and are always glad to play.

OSCAR DABNEY DIES IN ATHENS HOSPITAL

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 2.—(Special). Oscar W. Dabney, 50, prominent in local affairs, died at the hospital here Sunday night after an illness of several weeks.

Born in Newton county, Mississippi, in 1880, Mr. Dabney removed to Georgia at the age of nine years, his family settling temporarily in Franklin county. Shortly afterward they moved to Hartwell, where they resided for four years, following which they came to Athens, where Mr. Dabney has since lived and provided entertainment with activities of this community.

He was widely known as a merchant grocer, having for 24 years been a member of the firm of Arnold & Abney, one of the oldest grocery organizations in north Georgia. He was a deacon in the First Baptist church here, in which he took an active interest, as well as in affairs of the U. S. C. A. and the University of Georgia.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock from his residence, the Rev. Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be in Oconee cemetery.

Besides his widow, Mr. Dabney is survived by a daughter, Miss Anne Dabney; two sons, Walter Lewis Dabney, a student at the university, and Thomas Dabney, high school student; a sister, Mrs. M. M. Arnold, of Athens; and two brothers, Martin J. and W. I. Dabney, both of Athens.

TAYLOR O. ESTES, 70, DIES AT SMITHONIA

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 2.—Taylor O. Estes, 70, operator of one of the largest farms in the state, died at his home at Smithonia, near Colbert, early Sunday morning after an illness of two years. He was one of the operators of the late James Smith estate for many years. After Mr. Smith's death he took over a large part of the farm and then he has operated one of the largest cotton farms in Georgia. He operated the James Smith short line railroad for many years, connecting with the Georgia Railroad and Seaboard.

Mr. Estes is survived by his widow, a daughter, Miss Eva Estes; three sons, R. T. Estes, and E. L. Estes, of Colbert; a brother, Captain R. L. Estes, Athens; five sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Reid, Anniston, Ala.; Mrs. B. B. Sher, Jones, W. F. Dunaway, J. P. Shehann, Knox Gholston, Will Gholston, Louis Smith, E. P. Schull, Hamp McWhorter, Judge J. R. Nickerson, R. E. Gholston, W. D. Brainerd, A. S. Skelton, E. W. Dye, Judge B. T. Mosley, Chief Charlie Johnson, Judge J. L. Bradwell, Claude Tucker, Dr. Howe Chandler, M. G. Johnson, will serve as pallbearers. Interment will be in Colbert cemetery.

SAVANNAH PRESBYTERY WILL MEET NOV. 11-12

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Savannah presbytery will meet here November 11-12 at the First Presbyterian church with pastors and elders attending from 37 counties in southeastern Georgia.

Opening session will be Tuesday evening, November 11, when a new moderator will be chosen, A. E. Spencer, of Statesboro, whose term as moderator expired last spring, will submit a report as chairman of the some mission board. W. D. Brainerd, of Blackshear, is ruling elder and will preside at the opening session.

Business sessions will be held Wednesday, November 12.

CHICAGO QUARTET RELEASED AT MACON

Alleged Liquor Runners Make Bonds Totaling More Than $1,000.

MACON, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Police records show the release here Sunday under bond of three men and a woman, who officers said told them they were liquor runners. They were charged with a series of misdemeanors.

When arrested following what police described as a fast fight in a local hotel, the quartet gave the names of Arthur Schultz, C. L. Pace, Paul Seifert and Beatrice Leonard. The woman said, according to the officers, that she was a sister of Pace's wife.

In one of two automobiles which the police said the defendants admitted owning, officers reported finding several firearms of large calibre, and that the men had admitted ownership of the guns, stating they were carried as "protection against hi-jackers."

The bonds were posted after C. A. Byars, Griffin, (Ga.) attorney, said he had talked over telephone with a man, whose name he refused to divulge, in Chicago. Police Chief Watkins described the Chicago man as "the boss." Byars told Chief Watkins, according to the officers, that the quartet had been instructed to "pool their money and make bonds."

The total of which was $1,379 in addition to a $500 bond police said Pace had made for his appearance in Brooks county where a liquor-laden car was wrecked several weeks ago, allegedly by Pace.

Hearing for the quartet on charges of being drunk, loitering, disorderly conduct and assault and battery has been set for Monday. Seifert and Pace were arrested in the hotel, police said, and the woman taken into custody on a Chicago-bound bus, and Schultz on a street near the hotel.

Chief Watkins said Attorney Byars told him the "boss in Chicago" had said "they were just running liquor for him."

E. Y. CLARKE, WIFE DENY EMBEZZLEMENT

JESUP, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The registration book of the county jail Sunday listed Edward Young Clarke and Mrs. Martha Anna Clarke, who were brought here from Atlanta by Sheriff L. W. Rogers on charges of embezzlement in connection with promotion of a fraternal order called "Eskaye."

Clarke, who admitted upon his arrest in Atlanta Saturday that he was former imperial wizard, grand, and leader of the Ku Klux Klan, denied the embezzlement allegations on behalf of both himself and Mrs. Clarke. The charges were made in a warrant sworn out by G. M. Harrington, editor of the Jesup Sentinel, who said he was a stockholder in "Eskaye."

Sheriff Rogers said that no arrangement had been made yet for bond for Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, but that their attorney, Thomas H. Scott, of Atlanta, was expected tomorrow. The sheriff added that the charges against the Clarks would be presented to the grand jury this month.

State Deaths And Funerals

FUNERAL OF MRS. STENNIS.

GAINESSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 2.—Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Lou Carlan Stennis, 35, who died at the residence here of her sister, Mrs. Carl Brittain, were held from the home with the Rev. J. R. Christie, of Atlanta, and the Rev. W. A. Keel, pastor of the Central Baptist church, of Gainesville, officiating. Interment was in the city cemetery. Mrs. Stennis resided in Gainesville for some time and her death followed an illness of about six weeks. Besides her father, A. C. Carlan, of Monroe, N. C., Mrs. Stennis is survived by a daughter, Ann Carlan; a sister, Mrs. Carl Brittain, and a brother, A. C. Carlan, of New York city.

Admits Postoffice Robbery.

SYLVESTER, Ga., Nov. 2.—Henry Johnson, negro, who has been held in Worth county jail here since last Saturday as a suspect in connection with the robbery of the postoffice at Dokes, was released Saturday when Sam Webster, negro, captured in Arlington and returned here by Sheriff J. N. Sumner, made a full confession of the theft, according to authorities.

VALDOSTA TO WELCOME FLORIDA MOTORCADE

Plans Completed for Entertainment of Group on Tuesday.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—Plans for entertaining the motorcade from central Florida on Tuesday, were perfected Saturday afternoon at a meeting of committees representing the Rotary Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Kiwanis Club. The Floridians will be met at the Valdosta area.

A feature of the entertainment will be a dinner at the Hotel Daniel Ashby for entertaining the motorcade as joint hosts. Dr. A. G. Cleveland, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside at the dinner. Colonel J. B. Copeland, one of the gifted speakers of the city, will tell the visitors of the unsurpassed fresh water fishing and the excellent quail shooting in the Valdosta area.

THE SAFE INHALANT FOR CHILDREN'S COLDS

Vapex breaks up a cold swiftly and surely—yet it is as pleasant to use as perfume

It is pitiable to see a child with a cold. His nose running, his breathing labored. And it's silly to allow a cold to grip a child. For colds can be checked at the start. Just put a drop of Vapex on the handkerchief or blouse during the day, and a drop at each end of the pillow at night.

Vapex is safe, swift, and sure. It dries up sniffles, clears the head and promptly relieves colds. Vapex is very inexpensive. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications—an average of only 2c apiece. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It is approved by Good Housekeeping because it is safe for every one—even little children.

For safety's sake, always ask for V-A-P-E-X—the original inhalant—and do not accept an inferior product that claims to be "just as good."

Built to stand up to our GUARANTEE FOR LIFE

Yet made with a velvety, non-resisting point—for which we pay our point-smiths cash rewards

Nowhere else do you get this combination of lifelong durability with Pressureless Touch—Parker's 47th improvement

While difficult to build a pen that will last for life—the greater achievement, by far, is to make it both life-enduring and pressureless writing. To take from the point all resistance to hand and paper—to make it velvety smooth and instantly responsive.

Parker's inspiring success in this has baffled the whole pen industry. But Duofold points are clearly without rival. We have developed a body of point-smiths who are Aces, every one.

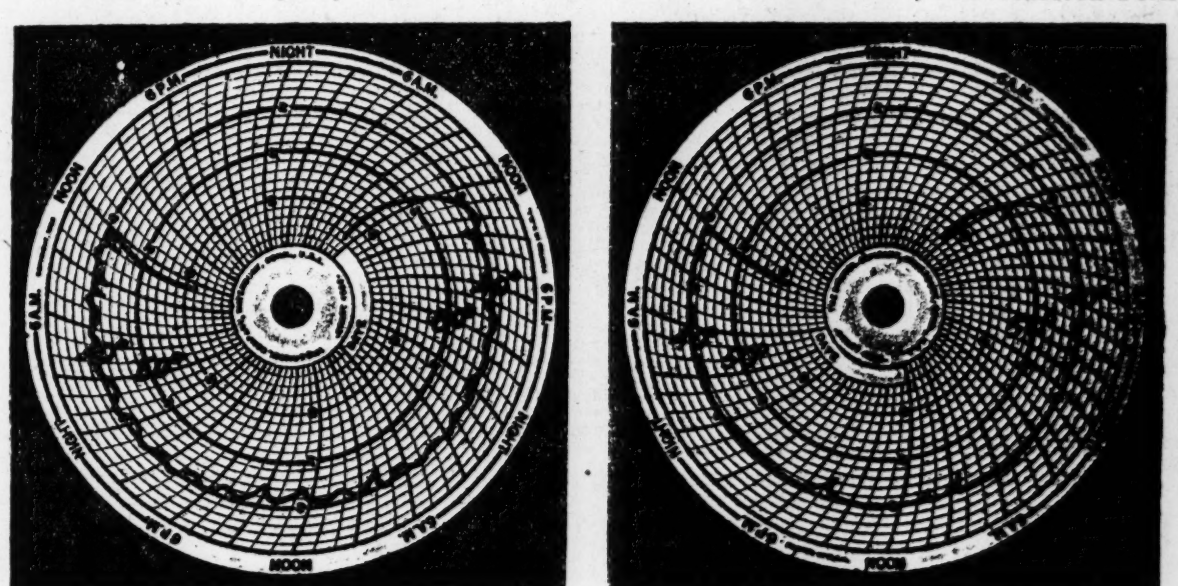

We limit the number of points that each may make per day, for every point must pass 11 mercurial tests, including Pressureless Touch. Then we pay its maker a bonus.

JUST AS COLD BUT COSTS LESS ...and holds temperature more evenly

Tested side by side in the same room at the same time, an ICE refrigerator for forty-eight hours held a temperature of 40° F. in the compartment just below the ice with less variation than one of the leading makes of mechanical ("electric") refrigerators costing more than twice as much, according to MERCHANDISING ICE, a Chicago trade journal, which reports the test on pages 28 and 29 of the July, 1930, issue, with the temperature charts reproduced above.

The chart illustrated on the left is that of the mechanical refrigerator. Note the wavy line at 40° F. The wavy line indicates the variation during the forty-eight hours. Note that the more even line of the ICE refrigerator chart on the right indicates less variation from 40° during that period.

"A temperature test of two refrigerators," reports MERCHANDISING ICE, "one an ice and the other a chemical (mechanical) refrigerator, recently was made with the result that the ice refrigerator held the temperature just as satisfactorily as the machine, in fact the line shown on the ice temperature chart... is even more stable than the one for the chemical refrigerator...

"In both instances doors were opened every hour during the day momentarily as would be the case in placing something therein or removing something from the refrigerator.

"The experiment covered a forty-eight hour test in a room the temperature of which ranged from 70° to 82° F. The ice refrigerator was loaded at the beginning of the test and during the forty-eight hours was not refilled with ice. The temperature charts... show the temperature in the milk compartment. They show an even temperature of about 40° F. with somewhat less variation in the ice refrigerator."

Georgia and Florida, in playing their scoreless tie in Savannah Saturday, gave acute pain to some, great joy to others and an unique spectacle to those who for one reason or another cared to study the game.

Both teams' defensive strength far over-balanced their offensive power.

The hard tackling of Florida giant backs in the secondary and their alertness in batting down Georgia passes was a sight to behold.

The way the Florida tackles and ends rushed the Georgia passer was amazing considering the hitherto air-tight line Georgia has had on offense.

On the other hand, Georgia bottled up the heaviest set of ball carriers the Southern conference has ever seen. Save for an uprising staged in the latter part of the third period and the early part of the fourth by Link Silsby, Florida's big fullback, Florida's running attack was smothered.

JACK ROBERTS' GREAT WORK.

Georgia's only offense was Jack Roberts, the durable line-bucker. He ploughed from one end of the field to the other on off-tackle plays. His endurance was amazing. He played most of the game and shouldered all the heavy ball carrying.

The other backs broke away now and then for gains but he alone—or perhaps it was the play on which he most often was called—was effective.

Georgia's rush line functioned less effectively on offense than it did in previous games. Otherwise the entire Bulldog eleven played up to its early season form.

GAME WAS EXCITING

Regardless of the fact that no touchdowns were scored the game was as tense and exciting as any 21 to 14 battle.

Florida won the toss and took advantage of the brisk wind. Ed Sauls, their great punter, steadily booted Georgia back through that period and the Bulldogs had no chance to get away.

A break came for Georgia just as the period ended when Catfish Smith grounded a kick on Florida's 17-yard line. Then with the wind in their favor Georgia put on the pressure.

That is where the Florida secondary defense got going. Their headlong tackling met every Bulldog ball carrier as he poked his nose through the line. They tackled the ball often and caused fumbles. They blanketed every Georgia pass receiver. Their line rushed Chandler far back when he threw them. Thus Georgia was held far away from the Florida goal line.

In the third period Georgia drove with ferocity to the Florida 1-yard line and were rebuffed by a surprisingly stout defense. Florida countered with Silsby and consumed the rest of the period, giving Georgia taste of the whiplash.

THAT LAST DRIVE.

In the fourth quarter Georgia set out again on their last boiling charge. They rushed down to the 6-yard line and a penalty on Florida put the ball on the 1-yard mark.

The ball was away over in a corner of the field which made it dangerous to try to score by an obvious wide play or by a forward pass. The Florida secondary moved out toward the middle of the field to shut off an end sweep.

So Quarterback Downes must have figured to do what Florida would not have expected him to do—buck that line four times with Roberts. Nothing that had happened before in a long campaign would suggest to Downes that the Georgia rush line could not crack the Florida opposition just once. A wide play would have lost six or seven yards and there was no goal kicker available who could reasonably hope to boot one. Downes' direction was wise. Let the second guessers talk.

SMITH AND McWHORTER.

Catfish Smith played the best game at end he has ever turned in. That is saying plenty. He manhandled a Florida tackle all afternoon and was smart in killing punts twice close to Florida's goal. He did not make a mistake and stopped every wide 'Gator play to the left.

McWhorter played a great game at center; he seems to have clinched a berth in there.

These are the after thoughts one feels called on to display after one has pondered for a few hours over events that happened swiftly before his eyes and had to be set down with no perspective to give them body.

WHAT OF IT?

Wayward Boye, the Man of Minus Mentality, had what might have been a swell day of picking winners Saturday but for nine tie games that cut down his average shamefully.

Defeats suffered by Carnegie Tech, Kansas, Penn State, Detroit, Illinois and S. M. U. hit him where he used to carry a pocket flask. Wayward lost 13 of his selections and has a season average from coast to coast of 250 won, 69 lost, for 783.

That is as far down as he can afford to fall. Any lower and he will have to go to work for a living.

Fort Noses Out Guards In First of City Series

Soldiers Take Early Lead, See Score Tied and Spurt To Win, 6 to 5.

By Walter Wilkes.

First blood in the city championship polo series went to Fort McPherson Sunday by the thin margin of six goals to five in a desperately fought encounter with the Governor's Horse Guards, who rallied to pull back on even terms with their rivals after the fourth chukker but failed to quite sustain the fast pace set by the soldiers in the two final frames.

Captain Wing scored twice in the opening frame, once carrying the ball down from midfield alone in a spectacular dash, but Moran, of the Guards, retaliated with a counter soon after the second chukker opened.

Speidel scored after the ball was centered by Franke, and the latter made good a No. 2 penalty free shot later for another goal, which padded the Fort lead.

The Guards rallied sharply in the third frame to count twice, Graham and Williamson teamed to score for the Guards, and Christian broke through for another goal. The Guards tied the count at 4-all in the fourth chukker, when Moran made a 60-yard free shot.

Franke got a score just as the bugle blew to end the fifth chukker, regaining the lead for the Fort. Both sides counted once in the final frame, Franke hitting across a beauty of about 60 yards from a difficult angle, and Christian hitting one back and squarely between the posts just as the game ended.

Red and White Polo Teams Battle To Tie

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Red and White polo teams of the 118th field artillery battled today to a 6-6 tie in a six chukker contest. Coleman, captain of the White team, scored five of the six goals for his team, Floyd making the sixth.

For the Reds Harper scored three goals, Jones, formerly of University of Georgia polo team, scored once, and Zealy tallied two goals.

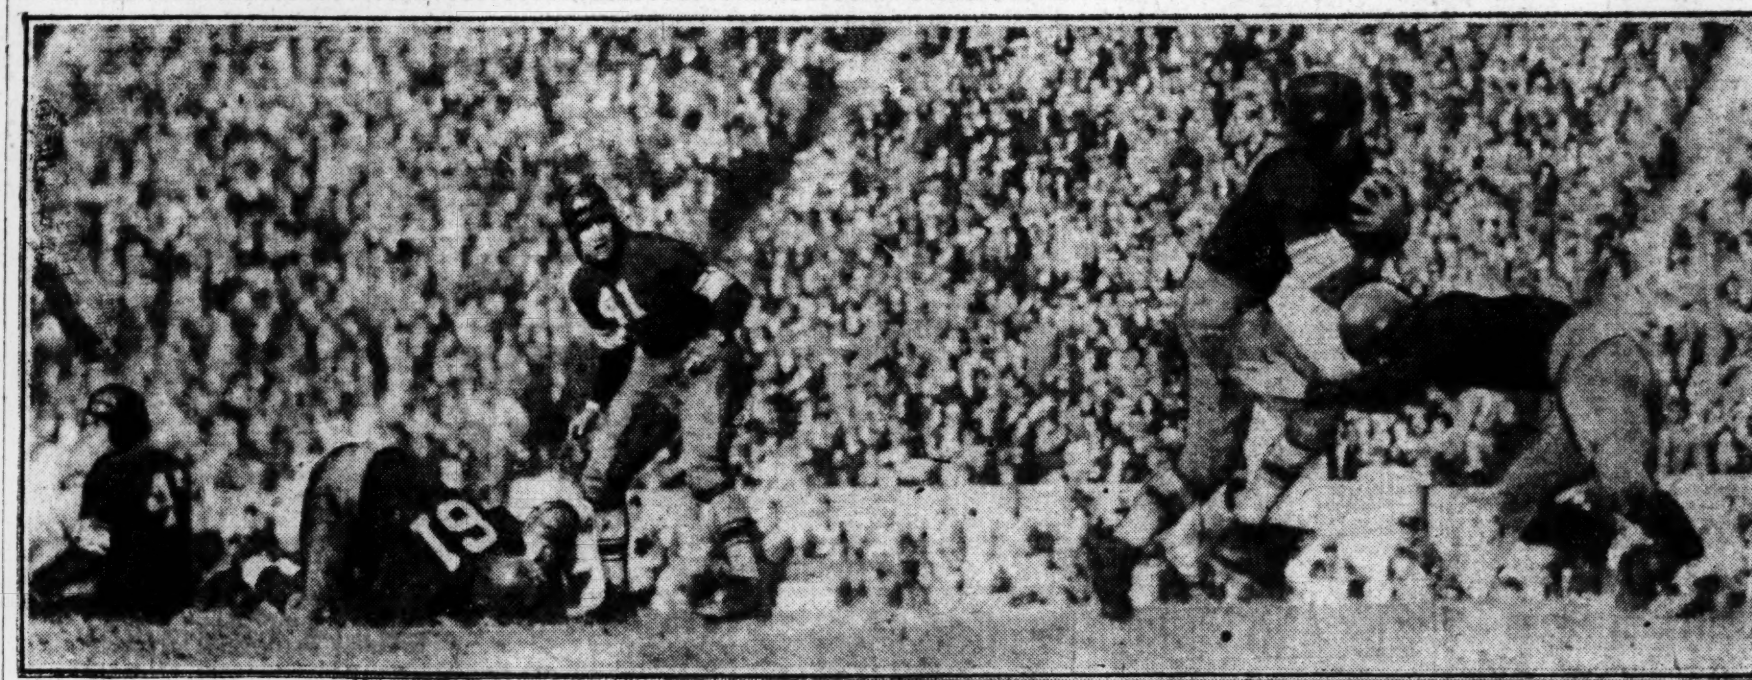

The brisk weather made the playing fast and the contest was one of the best seen during the season. Jimmy McIntire, now a Georgia polo player, was a member of the White Team.

RAINBOWS NOSED OUT. MEXICO CITY, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Mexican army general staff polo team defeated the Rainbows, of San Angelo, Texas, 8 to 7, today in the opening match of a three-game series.

TIDE AND WAVE TOP CONFERENCE

Jap Hart on Way to Tech Score---Pat Barron Halts Rip Slusser at Chapel Hill

MUNY TITLE WON BY C. O. MURPHY

Pat Murphy Loses Golf Crown, 4-3, Over 36 Holes.

C. O. Murphy, popular young James L. Key golfer, was crowned city municipal champion Sunday afternoon on the John A. White course on Cascade avenue, beating the veteran Pat Murphy, 4-3, in a 36-hole championship match.

The younger Murphy forged into the lead on the first nine holes with a par-equaling round and was five up at the 10th hole. He continued to play a steady game and retained a lead throughout the remaining 26 holes.

Pat Murphy steadied at the 11th hole and gradually cut the lead. He was only 1-down at the end of the morning round.

The afternoon round was a battle with every stroke in the bag and the younger Murphy, with a one-hole advantage, held on through the twenty-seventh, where he began a par-slasher and closed Pat out on the 32d green.

J. R. (Kid) Brown, the medalist, was forced to play one of his best rounds in order to win the consolation prize over Max Smith on the 19th green.

P. L. Blankenship continued his steady play to win the first flight title, 4-3, from C. L. Kranig. Blankenship was only a couple of strokes out of the championship flight.

M. D. Roseberry won the second flight title with a 1-up victory over W. M. Schneider on the 19th green.

Almost all matches in the tournament were unusually close and hard fought. It was the first tournament played on the new White municipal course, which afforded a true test of championship golf. Jeff Modie, club professional, was in charge of the tournament, which proved a success in every way.

Y. C. A. A. May Form New Court League

A new boys' basketball league to take care of the new members of the Y-Church Athletic Association is expected to be formed when that body meets at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 p. m. Monday. Three leagues completed their rosters at the last meeting and applications from several other clubs have been received since that time.

In the girls' league seven clubs have been admitted, several others have applied and it is probable that two club leagues will be completed at the meeting.

Fall Tourney Opens At Pinehurst Today

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The twenty-sixth annual autumn golf tournament opens here tomorrow with the 18-hole qualifying round. Match play starts Tuesday. Edward A. Gurneheim, of New York, is the defending champion.

Among the 40 entries are David N. Tallman, of Indianapolis, North American senior champion; George A. Law, of Boston, and Walter D. Hyatt, of Toledo, Ohio.

LATE PASSES WIN.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The Memphis Tigers defeated the Iron-ton (Ohio) Tanks, 7 to 0, today with a series of aerial plays in the last period after the two stalwart professional players had battled through three periods of bitterly fought grid-iron warfare to a standstill.

Strib Flies Folks Home From Bout

W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia's own heavyweight champion, passed through Atlanta Sunday afternoon in his other role, that of pilot-chauffeur for his family.

He flew "Pa" and "Ma" and his wife and children down from Boston, where he trounced K. O. Christian Friday night, making the hop from Charlotte, N. C. Sunday and taking an hour's layover here before continuing to the Stripling home.

Strib will return to Atlanta Wednesday to start training for his Armistice Day bout with Arthur DeKub, giant Italian. DeKub is slated to arrive Thursday.

Jap Hart, Georgia Tech's little driver, ran 27 yards at Chapel Hill Saturday to score six points for the Jackets and gave Tech a 6-6 tie with the North Carolina eleven. Hart, in the circle at the right in the top picture, is thrusting McCaskill, Tarheel fullback, off with a stiff-arm. He went on to avoid Johnny Branch near the Carolina goal, but fell and rolled the last four yards to the touchdown. No. 61, reclining on his face, is Nash, who missed Hart, while No. 41 is Casey Jones, Tech end. Below Pat Barron, who played an excellent game for the Jackets, is shown nailing "Rip" Slusser, the best Tarheel ground-gainer, in the circle. Jim Brooke, 40, and Bob Strickland, 31, are rushing up to aid Barron, while Lipscomb, 87, and Chandler, 83, Tarheel stars, are carrying out their assignments.

MATMEN HERE FOR BIG BOUTS

All principals in the double-header heavyweight wrestling match scheduled for the auditorium Tuesday night, are in the city and tapering off on training today for the matches.

Paul Jones, the sensational Texas heavyweight, is to meet Bill Bartush, the young Chicago heavyweight who has become such a popular and successful figure in the heavyweight class here of late.

That match, the main event, will be a two-hour limit affair with the best two out of three falls deciding it.

GREEK STAR.

The semi-windup brings in the sensational Greek, George Zafarias, with Joe Hackenschmidt as his opponent. They are well-known heavyweight contenders.

The main event brings together two men with legs more skillful than those owned by any other men in the ring and perhaps more powerful.

When Joe Stecher went into the ranks of the second-raters the game was left with just one man who could use his legs in crushing fashion. That was Paul Jones.

Stecher used the body scissors, applying the pressure over the heart and this weakening and reducing the power of his opponents. After a few applications of the Stecher sci-

Tech's Bid for Victory Costs Earl's Services

Blow on Injured Knee Will Keep Captain Out Until Thanksgiving Game.

By Ralph McGill.

Georgia Tech's desperate efforts to break the six and six deadlock and wrest the game from North Carolina Saturday at Chapel Hill proved costly.

Captain Earl Dunlap, who has been practically incapacitated since the Carnegie Tech game, received a severe knee injury and was forced from the game after he had entered it in an effort to pass the team to a victory.

Reports Sunday from Coach William A. Alexander, of the Jackets, were that Dunlap was lost to the team until the Thanksgiving Day game and perhaps until the Georgia game in December.

The knee hurt was the same one injured at Pittsburgh and Dunlap was suffering acute pain Sunday and walking with the aid of a stick and then with difficulty.

Dunlap's courage was magnificent in the Chapel Hill game. He was badly hurt in the second quarter. Yet he came back in the fourth quarter for one more try. It was an unsuccessful forward pass.

Once the terrific suspense and drama of Georgia Tech's climb out of the football shadow had been suspended with a tie game with a team doomed to win handsomely, certain salient edges in the game began to

ATLANTA BIRDS BEATEN IN RACE

Victory again went Sunday to the pigeons of O. B. Andrews, Sr., Chattanooga sportsman, in the second match race with birds owned by W. J. Stoddard, of 3405 Piedmont road, Atlanta, but competition was much more brisk than was the case last week, a margin of less than four minutes separating the arrival times of the respective flock leaders.

Eight of the Andrews pigeons were loosed from the Stoddard residence at the same moment—10 o'clock—that eight Atlanta birds were liberated from the great loft on the summit of Lookout mountain. At a few seconds past 12:45, Chattanooga reported that the first of its feathered speedsters had checked in, while just before 12:49, "Flying Fox"—leader of the Atlanta contingent—sailed into his home loft and demanded nourishment.

"Lindbergh" was runner-up among the Stoddard pets, and "Al Smith" finished third. The Andrews birds have not been named by their owner. Stoddard stated Sunday night that he was highly pleased with the performance of his pigeons, considering the fact that they flew the 100-mile course in the face of a stiff southeast wind and that he hoped to climb into the win column in the third test race which is scheduled for next Sunday, November 9.

Georgia-Florida Grid Photos Sped

Modern speed and splendid cooperation combined to make the pictures of the game between the powerful Georgia and Florida football teams, played Saturday at Savannah, available to Constitution readers Sunday.

Beeler Blevins flew Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer, to the game and back in good time, despite bad wind conditions, and the city of Savannah placed all facilities at his disposal in helping get the pictures off.

FOUR BIG CLUBS DROP FROM LIST IN HARD GAMES

Crimson Holds Undeniable Lead After Saturday's Play.

By Ed Danforth.

That jarring crash off stage Saturday was occasioned by four big conference football teams falling off their pedestals.

Kentucky and Clemson fell through the trapdoor of common club luck. Georgia and Florida hit the floor locked in a mutual strangle hold and got up somewhat battered.

Only Alabama and Tulane remain unbeaten and untied.

And of these two the Crimson Tide from Tuscaloosa is surging far out in front with five victories within the conference and no defeats. The pachyderms of the Wallace Wade menagerie have done nothing but defeat Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Kentucky on successive Saturdays. Their record towers over that of Tulane like the Statue of Liberty over a paper weight.

Wonder if Coach Wade thinks he has a strong team by now? He professed to be unconvinced before his men beat Kentucky by three touchdowns—19 to 0.

BEST IN HISTORY.

That Alabama was able to show measurable improvement through that string of three games in beating teams that before the season were rated favorites in the Cotton Belt campaign stamps the present Capstone aggregation as one of the best in history.

The forward passing attack that Alabama was not called on to use by just the Cotton Belt and the Commodores was unlimbered against the Wildcats and proved an effective adjunct to the jolting charges of John Henry Suther and Monk Campbell.

Kentucky had been running wild over inferior opposition, but they could not maintain their pace against the superior rush-line strength that Alabama threw against them. Alabama led by six points to none at the half but after intermission the Crimson offense prevailed and the Wildcats yielded ground.

ALL TOO STRONG.

Alabama plays Florida next and, while the Gators showed great defensive strength in holding Georgia scoreless at Savannah, the Tide looks entirely too strong for Florida to hope to keep their goal line clear.

Georgia is not out of the running for the conference championship despite their scoreless tie with Florida. Georgia still must beat Tulane and Alabama to win it. That would have been their problem if they had defeated Florida; so the dogfall at Savannah can be charged off to education.

The Bulldogs play New York University at the Polo Grounds next Saturday and that game cannot hurt their conference rating. The Georgia-Tulane game will be the big act of November 15.

TULANE COASTS.

Tulane rested up Saturday, waiting for Georgia by running up a crudely large score on the disgraced Mississippi Aggies. The next foe of the Greenies is Auburn. Auburn will give them a hard enough game, just enough to put them on edge for the Bulldogs. That game will be a red hot contest that will take everything Georgia can muster to win.

Georgia Tech actually played rings around North Carolina and deserved to win. Tech had more scoring chances than the Tarheels did and offside penalties wrecked more than one chance.

It is doubtful if North Carolina would have scored but for an offside penalty on a fourth down punt. In getting a 6-6 tie at Chapel Hill, the Yellow Jackets had no luck at all.

DUNLAP LOST.

The Engineers showed great improvement in play but came out against Earl Dunlap definitely lost until Thanksgiving Day. Truly the Yellow Jackets and all the good fortune in the South Carolina game October 4.

Clemson's powerful team had plied six goals when they invaded Knoxville. Their last victory had been over their traditional foe, South Carolina. So they were up and proved easy prey for the up and coming Vols who have rallied sharply since losing to Alabama in the third game of the season.

Your correspondent witnessed the Georgia-Florida deadlock and saw a game in which the condition of the field had no little to do with the play of both teams. The field was soft and sandy. Neither rush line could charge hard on offense and open holes for the backs.

SILSBY ONLY POWER.

Florida, save on the few times big Silsby carried the ball on a straight plunge, could get nowhere running; they had some success with a fast pass, but their line could not budge the Georgia forwards.

Conversely Georgia's wide plays and offside bunches when they invaded Knoxville. Their last victory had been over their traditional foe, South Carolina. So they were up and proved easy prey for the up and coming Vols who have rallied sharply since losing to Alabama in the third game of the season.

Had the field been compact, I believe both teams would have scored and Georgia would have scored often. This is a bit of harmless opinion, nothing more.

HORSES ARRIVE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Kilbaird, St. Roy and Manabur, three British horses which have been entered in the first Grandstands international steeplechase, to be run December 6 at Grandstands Downs, Gallatin, Tenn., will arrive here Monday from London aboard the S. S. Minnetonka.

Celebration Night To Be Observed By Y. W. C. A.

Monday evening will be observed as "celebration night" by the Industrial Club girls of the Y. W. C. A. as it marks the close of the first six weeks of the interesting groups, and the program plans for each of the girls to exhibit her skill in crafts, tap dancing, swimming, or to demonstrate her knowledge of drama, poetry or music learned in these groups, which are planned by Miss Carrie Lou Allgood, industrial secretary, and carried forward by a splendid corps of volunteer assistants. The classes have grown from 18 to an enrollment of 45 and interest is constantly increasing.

The central idea giving color to the various events will be "the search for happiness." Characters from Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird," dressed in appropriate costume, will greet the guests, which include the industrial girls and their friends. At the conclusion of the group singing, led by Miss Helen Coyne Riley, the guests will be conducted to the second floor where whimsical excerpts from the "Blue Bird" will be presented in dramatic form, under the direction of Mrs. A. Worth Hobby. Following this a trip to the gymnasium will enable them to watch the tap dancing classes and then to the swimming pool, for an exhibition of swimming and diving which the girls have been practicing for the past six weeks.

The groups will gather around the large fireplace in the hallway of the administration building. The lights, shaded by blue globes, and the large chandeliers holding tall, blue candles will cast an eerie glow over the whole scene. In a variety of attractive ways, the groups will pass in review showing the accomplishments of the past six weeks.

Those who have been present at these classes are Misses Corrie Goodwin, Frances Childs, Beulah Cooper, Ollie Mae Fleming, Mary Boles, Estelle Brown, Lizzie Gorman, Inez Davis, Darlene Moon, Ruby Grier, Leola Young, Joyce Adams, Mary Kennedy, Harriet Adams, Blanche Turner, Susie Spinks, Mary Sims, Mildred Cooper, Enda Deal, Lillian Thigpen, Lucile Reynolds, Blanche Woodcock, Willie Nolan, Margaret Olson, Lyla Ingram, Jeddie Farmer, Ora Farmer, Katherine Lee, Neil Brandenburg, Blanche Russell, Lee Bond, Lois Cumming, Bill Bond, Inez Pierce, Annie Lou Hix and Mesdames E. H. Bannister and A. B. McCullough.

G. S. W. C. Faculty Members Honored.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 2.—A group of the faculty of the G. S. W. C. have been elected to membership in the American Association of University Professors including Professor James H. Stokes, Dr. Lena J. Hawks, Professor Gertrude Gilmer and Miss Lucile Jenkins. A local chapter of the association has been formed at the college with Dr. H. S. Gulliver, president, and Professor Gertrude Gilmer, secretary.

The following members of the Glee Club have been elected for the double quartet: Misses Hazel Allen, of Valdosta; Mary Flanagan, of Waycross; Margaret Williams, of Douglas; Elizabeth Arnold, of Fort Gaines; Ethel McSwain, of Lyons; Mary Poole, of Balboa, Canal Zone; Emeliza Swain, of Rome, and Elizabeth Pardee, of Thomaston.

Fine Arts Club met at the clubhouse Tuesday night, October 28, for the initiation of new members. One feature of the initiation was a caricature drawing contest, and another different yet amusing contest was a soap sculpture test. Each candidate for membership was asked to carve some piece of "art work" from a small piece of soap. Pen knives and finger nail files were used, and the feat was performed in ten minutes. The general program for the year was outlined by the president, Miss Mary Elizabeth Boyd.

Vesper services were held Sunday evening, October 26, in the rotunda of Ashley hall. Miss Emeliza Swain, of Rome, was the leader for the evening. Miss Mary Elzine Flanagan, of Waycross, gave a song, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled," by Sparks. An inspirational talk on the singing towers of Europe was made by Miss Annie P. Hopper, dean of women.

Thursday evening vesper services were led by Miss Blanche Prescott, of Lake Park. Dr. Eugene, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave a talk. A song was given by the choir.

The Student Government Association of G. S. W. C. entertained with a tea Wednesday afternoon, October 29, in the rotunda. A program was given by members of the vocal expression and music departments. Miss Elizabeth Arnold, of Fort Gaines, played "Norwegian Bridal Prologue," by Grieg; "I Know a Lovely Garden," by Guy D'Hardelot, and "Kentucky Babe," by Adam Gerbel, were sung by Dorothy Ford, of Valdosta. Miss Louise Clifford, of Valdosta, played, "Witches' Dance," by MacDowell, and Miss Myrtle Johnson, of Vidalia, read "The Beau of Bath," by Constance Mackay. "Autumn," by Chaminade, was played by Miss Helen Ryan, of Hinesville.

Valdosta Club was entertained Friday evening by Miss Dorothy Stroud, president of the club, at her home on Toombs street. Social and business plans for the year of 1930-31 were discussed; the duties of each member, and of the club as a whole, was explained by Miss Stroud. After the short business meeting, dancing and bridge were enjoyed. Tea was served by Misses Sue Pendleton, Hazel Allen and Dorothy Courtney.

Argonian and Sororian Literary societies held their first joint meeting of the year last Saturday evening. The class, in play production

Wins College Honors

Miss Hazel Stamps, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Stamps, 841 Myrtle street, N. E., a junior at Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va., who was recently elected to the Tau Phi society. To be elected to Tau Phi is one of the most coveted honors at Sweet Briar as it is composed of students presumably having the widest interests, and displaying leadership, personality and all-round development.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Nov. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Holt, prominent pioneer citizens of Lawrenceville, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at their home here Friday, November 7. The ceremony that united Mr. and Mrs. Holt on November 7, 1880, will be re-enacted at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the event to assemble a large gathering of friends and relatives and to be followed in the evening by a reception.

The Rev. J. A. Reiser, pastor of the First Baptist church of Lawrenceville, will read the marriage service, and Mrs. Holt's twin sister, Mrs. W. M. Jordan, of Lawrenceville, who acted as her maid-of-honor in 1880, will attend her on this occasion. Mrs. Holt was before her marriage Miss Louisa Angora Garner, of Stone Mountain, and Mrs. Jordan was the former Miss Louise Vandora Garner, Mr. Jordan having been best man for Mr. Holt when he was wed to Miss Garner.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Holt will be their children who include Mr.

and Mrs. E. A. Holt, R. S. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Holt, Mrs. Junior Adair, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Holt, W. K. Holt, Miss Corbelle Holt and J. H. Holt, all of Lawrenceville. The late Hugh Holt who was a victim of shell-shock and gas in the recent World War was also a son of Mr. and Mrs. Holt, who number in their family circle in addition to their children, 16 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

During the afternoon and evening a musical program will be furnished by Miss Elizabeth Wilde, of Acworth, and Mrs. Louis Sams, of Gainesville. The wedding march will be played by the hosts' young granddaughter, Miss Monica Holt, of Lawrenceville. Miss Elise Green will keep the bride's book.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt are outstanding and beloved citizens of Lawrenceville, having made their home here since their marriage 50 years ago. Mr. Holt is a prominent business man of this section and with his wife has taken an important part in the social and religious life of Lawrenceville.

College Park Woman's Club Stages Flower Show Nov. 5

COLLEGE PARK, Ga., Nov. 2.—College Park Woman's Club meets Wednesday, November 5, at 3 o'clock at the club house, and Mrs. D. R. Nesbitt, chairman of the garden division, will have charge of the program. The club holds its annual chrysanthemum show and many beautiful flowers will be on exhibition at the meeting. College Park is famed far and wide for her marvelous, gorgeous flowers, and this year she has no expectation of lowering her standards or, in any way, detracting from her usual glorious record.

Competent judges will award the silver vase to the best exhibit of one dozen blooms, four varieties, three of a kind. Other awards and honors will be given for the best in a number of entries. Keen, but friendly rivalry is being displayed among the flower growers.

Mrs. Robert Rosser, music chairman, will present a group of accomplished singers who will add appropriate music to the occasion. The public is most cordially invited to the flower show. Tuesday morning, November 4, 10 to 12 o'clock, the executive board of the club meets at the home of the president, Mrs. A. T. Akers, 222 W. Cambridge avenue. All members are urged to be present. This meeting will be over in time for those present to attend the music club luncheon being given on the occasion in honor of Miss Helen Coyne Riley.

from the vocal expression department, presented a modern one-act comedy, "Poor Aubrey," by George Kelley. This was the first of a series of plays to be presented during the year, illustrating the four main types of drama, tragedy, comedy, farce, melodrama. Aubrey, the husband, was played by Anna Francis Ham, of Valdosta. Amy, the wife, was taken by Margaret Littlefield, Folkston. The mother-in-law, Mrs. Fischer, was played by Margaret Williams, Waycross. Mrs. Cole, a friend, by Katherine Wall, of Ellaville. The play was directed by Elizabeth Kirkland, Sylvester.

Miss Clements Weds Hal T. Gilbert.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 2.—The marriage of Miss Daisy Clements and Hal T. Gilbert, Jr., formerly of Perry, Ga., was quietly solemnized at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, October 29, at the First Presbyterian church, of Columbus. Dr. Robert S. Boyd, the pastor, united the couple with the ring ceremony, which was witnessed by only the members of the immediate families.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Sara Crawford, of Atlanta, maid of honor. The groom was attended by his brother, Louis H. Gilbert, of Perry.

Mrs. Gilbert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Clements, of Oliver, Ga., her father being a well known planter of southeast Georgia. She is a graduate of Davis-Fischer sanitarium, Atlanta.

Mr. Gilbert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Gilbert, of Perry. He is an honor graduate of the Perry High school, and a textile engineer of the Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, Kappa Kappa Psi musical fraternity, and Phi Kappa Phi, honorary fraternity. Since his graduation from Tech he has been connected with the Bibb Manufacturing Company and is at present overseer of the Columbus mill.

TWELVE SHADES ONE DOLLAR

DEBUT PARTIES AND BENEFIT MARK WEEK'S CALENDAR

Miss Hoke and Miss Bryan To Be Presented to Society

Though society takes a breathing spell today, perhaps for complete recovery from the round of gay Halloween events which it was engaged in last week, the first week of November finds the social calendar marked with a number of important affairs demanding social attention. Today's events, though few in number, are none the less interesting and of an informal character. The debutante group, always the center of attention, will be the guests at a tea time of Mrs. C. R. Turner and Miss Annie Mary Fuller at her home on Seventeenth street, assembling in the name of Miss Sarah Meador, as honor guest. In the evening they will be the guests of Mrs. Frank Sprattlin when she entertains at supper, complimenting two of their most popular members, Miss Eugenia Bridges and Miss Caroline Paulin. Mrs. John D. Little, who has recently returned from Europe, will be hostess to a group of prominent matrons at luncheon today at her apartments in the Biltmore. The Sigma Delta fraternity banquet to be given this evening at the Wincoff hotel in honor of the fraternity pledges will assemble members of the college contingent.

Of major importance among the larger affairs of the week are two elaborate debut parties, the first of which will be the reception, followed by a buffet supper, at which Dr. and Mrs. Michael Hoke will introduce their lovely young daughter, Miss Laura Hoke, on Tuesday. They will entertain at their Peachtree Circle home and have invited to meet their daughter several hundred members of fashionable society.

On Friday, Mrs. William A. Wright will present her debutante granddaughter, Miss Mary Cox Bryan, to her friends among Atlanta society, at a large tea to be given at her home on Fifteenth street. Other parties planned this week for the season's buds include Mrs. Sam Johnson's luncheon Wednesday for Miss Hannah Sterne and Miss Eleanor Johnson; Mrs. H. W. Beers' tea the same day honoring Miss Eugenia Bridges; Miss Sarah Ison's tea Thursday for Miss Bridges; and Mrs. Spencer Boyd, who before her recent marriage was Miss Verdery Rosenbusch; Mrs. Joel Hunter's luncheon Friday honoring Miss Eleanor Johnson, and the party at which Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burnett will entertain at the week-end dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club, complimenting Miss Sarah Meador.

Sub-Deb Colony.

Thursday will witness one of the largest gatherings of the week when the Sub-Deb Colony Club will sponsor a bridge party at the Piedmont Driving Club for the benefit of the Cornelia Moore Day nursery, this event to be the first of the philanthropic efforts of this group of young girls.

The week-end festivities will revolve around the Tech-Vanderbilt football game which will bring to the city a large number of visitors for whom an elaborate social program will be planned.

The Saturday evening dances at the clubs will gain interest and gaiety from the presence of these visitors, the Piedmont Driving Club, the Standard, and the Athletic clubs to be hosts at this time.

Miss Lucyle Johnson, whose marriage to James Huff will take place at an early date, will be feted at a number of informal affairs this week, including Misses Evelyn and Kathleen Dewberry's bridge-ten; showers at which Mrs. R. F. McDonald and Mrs. Lucy Brotherton will entertain, and Miss Elise Nash's bridge party.

St. Philip's School

Announces Classes.

A dancing school of six weeks' duration will begin at St. Philip's Cathedral Church school chapter house, 11 Hunter street, S. W., at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, November 4, and will be held each succeeding Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock under the auspices of the Parent-Teacher Association of the school. The teacher of this school will be Miss Theodora Dozier, of the Atlanta Conservatory. Miss Dozier has been in New York this past summer studying the latest tango and other dance steps, which will be taught. There will be a class for beginners, as well as one for those desiring advanced knowledge. The schedule to be maintained will be one hour's instruction from 8:30 to 9:30 each Wednesday evening, and one hour's practice from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock. Tickets for the entire six-week course are $2 each and may be secured through Mrs. E. A. Shells, Main 449, or Mrs. E. E. Harkness, Decatur 0469-W. The general public is invited to join the classes.

Mule Bride's Husband

Jailed as Kidnaper

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Nov. 2. (AP)—Ed Green was in jail here today on a warrant sworn out by his wife, Louise, 15, charging him with kidnapping her at the point of a pistol.

Mrs. Green, who said she left her husband while they were living in Detroit last year after she found out that he had "bought her" for a team of mules and wagon, harness thrown in, told county authorities that Green came to the home of her father, Henry Gibbs, and abducted her.

A PRETTY MORNING DRESS.

7003. How very attractive and becoming is this neat and pleasing style. One may use printed voile, crepe or linen—gingham, too, is recommended, and rayon and celanese fabrics are suggested as equally desirable. The dress may be finished with or without the collar and with wide length plain—fitted sleeves or short sleeves trimmed with upturned cuffs. A narrow belt, contrasting in color with the waist line. The waist portions show groups of tucks at the shoulders in front, and are lengthened to form yoke and panels to which the flare side sections of the skirt are joined.

This pattern is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. To make the dress in a 38-inch size with long sleeves will require 5 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. With short sleeves the material will be 5 1/2 yards. Without collar 4 5/8 yards will be required. For collar, vestee, cuffs and belt of contrasting material 3/4 yard will be required 35 inches wide. To finish with bias binding as shown in the view will require 2 1/2 yards of 1 1/2 inches wide. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 5/8 yards.

Patterns mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

At Atlanta's Moving Picture Ball

The Standard Club entertained at one of Atlanta's most brilliant fall fetes Saturday night with a moving picture ball. Costuming, added to artistry in make-up, produced doubles of a majority of Hollywood's brightest stars. The individual prize winners are shown at the upper left. Oscar R. Straus, Jr., is representing "Harpo" Marx, of the four Marx Brothers, and Mrs. Lewis J. Elsas, ladies' first prize winner, represents the "monkey in the Unholy Three." Lon Chaney's last great picture, "The Great Dictator," is shown at the upper right. Lower left is Miss Virginia Gleaner, Lazarus watching the parade of personalities. The "Three French Girls" are shown at the lower right. They are: Mrs. Oscar Straus, Jr., as "Marie," Mrs. Sam Hirsch as "Yvette," Mrs. Eugene Oberdorfer as "Yvonne," and Rudolph Adler as "W" in "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Needlework Guild Perfects Plans for Garment Collection

The fall meeting of the Atlanta branch, Needlework Guild of America, held Friday in the Y. W. C. A. building, was marked by the perfecting of plans for the annual collection of new, useful garments to be distributed to over 40 charitable institutions of the city. Mrs. Edwin M. Helbig, president, announced that the collection will be held at the North Avenue church Sunday school house, the week following Thanksgiving and Christmas. She made an appeal for an additional number of garments or their equivalent in money, due to the extreme need at this season.

Friends of the guild, as well as members, are invited to attend a tea December 3 from 3 to 5 o'clock at the North Avenue church house when collected garments will be on display. Mrs. Guy Woolford, chairman of this event, announced that the work of the guild will be fully explained at that time. Other chairmen appointed by the president are: Mrs. E. S. Harrold, automobiles; and Mrs. S. B. Mitchell, purchasing.

Two new organizations were welcomed into the guild at the Friday meeting: the Garden Hills Woman's Club and the Winthrop Alumnae. Representatives from these clubs pledged their support in contributing garments for the needy. The Buckeye Woman's Club, Kentucky Club, Civic Club of West End, Hoosier Club and Needlecraft Circle reported the completion of several hundred garments.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the attendance of representatives from a number of the city's charitable institutions, as follows: Atlanta Child's Home, Annie Crook Club, Andrew Stewart Day Nursery, Y. W. C. A., Georgia Children's Home Society, Florence Crittenden Home, Family Welfare Society, Henrietta Eggleston Memorial hospital, Hillside Cottages, Home for Old Women, St. Vincent de Paul, Southern Christian Home, Kate P. Dawson Good Will Center, Atlanta Tuberculosis Association, Highway Chapel, Child Welfare Association of Fulton and DeKalb counties, Grady hospital lab and maternity ward, Leonard Street Orphanage and Carrie Steele Orphanage.

The resignation of Mrs. S. B. Mitchell, secretary, was received with regret. Mrs. W. W. Alexander being elected to fill this important office. Mrs. Helbig asked that friends of the guild who wish to become members contribute two new garments or funds with which to purchase clothing. Any contribution may be sent to Mrs. W. W. Alexander, 941 Clifton road, N. E.

U.S. DEBT CANCELLATION

URGED AS SLUMP CURE

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 2. (AP)—An immense change for the better would appear in the world business situation if the United States reduced if not cancelled entirely the war debts owed by foreign nations to this country.

Charles F. Abbott, of Montclair, N. J., executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, said here today following the close of the institute's annual convention.

"Reduction or cancellation by the United States of the World War debts would be the most forward step that could be imagined toward dissipating international depression," said Mr. Abbott. "So long as those debts are hanging over the heads of the countries owing them it is discouraging and unsettling toward rehabilitation of the economic system."

PROMINENT BRITISH

ARMY LEADER DIES

LONDON, Nov. 2. (AP)—Lieutenant General Sir Edward Cecil Beethune, one of the foremost soldiers of the empire, died here today at the age of 75.

In the Boer war, he raised and commanded Beethune's Horse, a cavalry regiment that rendered conspicuous service. In the early years of the great war he was director general of the territorial force.

Air Pilot Saves Woman

By Quick Blow to Chin.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 2. (AP)—An aviator here developed today a rough but effective method of preventing serious injury to a passenger.

Pilot Daish, while flying over Sydney at an altitude of 500 feet, saw a woman attempting to jump out of the cockpit. Promptly letting loose of the controls, Daish landed a quick blow on the chin, knocking her unconscious.

THE GUMPS—READY TO SPRING THE TRAP

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

"O, that's interesting," he said up—allowed his cigarette to go out. "Inferiority complex, I think. Possibly too many inhibitions. I should like to write the story of the affair. Amazingly complex. Week after week, year after year, he's seen the man—at vestry meetings—at choir boys' outings—handing round the bug in church—bringing it to the altar. Always he dislikes the man—always he chokes down his dislike. It's unchristian-like, he won't encourage it. And so it festers underneath, and one day—" He made a graphic gesture.

Griselda turned to me. "Have you ever felt like that, Len?"

"Never," I said truthfully. "Yet I hear you were wishing him out of the world not so long ago," remarked Miss Marple. (That miserable Dennis! But my fault, of course, for ever making the remark.)

"It was a stupid remark to make, I said, but really I'd had a very trying morning with him."

"That's disappointing," said Raymond West. "Because, of course, if your subconscious were really planning to do him in, it would never have allowed you to make that remark. My theory falls to the ground. This is probably a very ordinary murder—a revengeful, poucher or something of that sort."

"Miss Gram came to see me this afternoon," said Miss Marple. "I met her in the village and I asked her if she would like to see my garden."

"Is she fond of gardens?" asked Griselda.

"I don't think so," said Miss Marple, with a faint twinkle. "But it makes a very useful excuse for talk, don't you think?"

"What did you make of her?" asked Griselda.

"She volunteered a lot of information—really a lot of information," said Miss Marple. "About herself, you know, and her people. They all seem to be dead or in India. Very sad. By the way, she has gone to Old Hall for the week-end."

"What?"

"Yes, it seems Mrs. Protheroe asked her—or she suggested it to Mrs. Protheroe—I don't quite know which way about it. To do some secretarial work for her—there are so many letters to cope with. It turned out rather fortunate. Dr. Stone being away, she has nothing to do. What an excitement this barrow has been."

"Stone?" said Griselda. "Is that the archaeologist fellow?"

"Yes, he is excavating a barrow. On the Protheroe property."

"He's a good match," said Raymond. "Wonderfully keen on his job. I met him at a dinner not long ago and we had a most interesting talk. I must look him up."

"Unfortunately," I said. "He's just gone to London for the week-end. Why, you actually met him at the station this afternoon."

"I ran into you. You had a little fat man with you—wearing glasses on."

"But my dear fellow—that wasn't Stone."

"Not Stone?"

"Not the archaeologist. I know him quite well. The man wasn't Stone—not the faintest resemblance."

"We stared at each other. In particular I stared at Miss Marple. 'Extraordinary,' I said. 'The suitcase,' said Miss Marple. 'But why?' said Griselda. 'It reminds me of the time the man went round pretending to be the gas inspector,' murmured Miss Marple. 'Quite a little haul, he got.'

"An impostor," said Raymond West. "Now this is really interesting."

"The question is, has it anything to do with murder?" said Griselda. "I looked at Miss Marple. 'But—' 'It is,' she said, 'a peculiar thing. Another peculiar thing. I rather feel the inspector ought to be told about this at once.'

"Inspector Slack's orders, once I had got him on the telephone, were brief and emphatic. Nothing was to 'get about.' In particular, Miss Gram was not to be alarmed. In the meantime, a search was to be instituted for the suitcase in the neighborhood of the barrow.

Griselda and I returned home very excited over this new development. We could not say much with Dennis present, as we had faithfully promised Inspector Slack to breathe no word to anybody.

In any case, Dennis was full of his own troubles. He came into my study and began fingering things and shuffling his feet and looking thoroughly embarrassed.

"What is it, Dennis?" I said at last.

"Uncle Len. I don't want to go to see."

I was astonished. The boy had been so very decided about his career up to now.

"But you were so keen on it," "Yes, but I've changed my mind."

"What do you want to do?" "I want to go into finance."

"I was even more surprised. 'What do you mean—finance?' 'Just that. I want to go into the city.'

"But, my dear boy, I am sure you would not like the life. Even if I obtained a post for you in a bank—"

Dennis said that wasn't what he meant. He didn't want to go into a bank. I asked him what exactly he did mean, and of course, as I suspected, the boy didn't really know.

By "going into finance" he simply meant getting rich quickly which, with the optimism of youth, he imagined was a certainty if one "went into the city."

I disabused him of this notion as gently as I could.

"What's put it into your head?" I asked. "You were so satisfied with the idea of going to sea."

"I know, Uncle Len, but I've been thinking. I shall want to marry some day—and I mean, you've got to be rich to marry a girl."

"Facts disprove your theory," I said.

"I know—but a real girl. I mean, a girl who's used to things."

It was very vague but I thought I knew what he meant.

"You know," I said gently. "All girls aren't like Lettice Protheroe."

He fired up at once.

"You're awfully unfair to her. You don't like her. Griselda doesn't either. She says she's tiresome."

From the feminine point of view, Griselda is quite right. I could quite realize, however, that a boy would resent the adjective.

"If only people made a few allowances. Why even the Harey Napiers are going about grousing about her at a time like this! Just because she left their old tennis party a bit early. Why should she stay if she was bored? Jolly decent of her to go at all, I think."

"Quite a favor," I said, but Dennis suspected no malice. He was full of his own grievance on Lettice's behalf.

"She's awfully unselfish, really. Just to show you, she made me stay. Naturally I wanted to go, too. But she wouldn't hear of it. Said it was too bad on the Napiers. So, just to please her, I stopped on a quarter of an hour."

The young have very curious views on unselfishness.

"And now I hear Susan Hartley Napier is going about everywhere saying Lettice has rotten manners."

"If I were you," I said, "I shouldn't worry."

"It's all very well, but—"

"I'd-I'd do anything for Lettice."

"Very few of us can do anything for any one else," I said. "However much we wish it, we are powerless."

"I wish I were dead," said Dennis. Poor lad. Love is a virulent disease. I forbore to say any of the obvious and probably irritating things which come so easily to one's lips. Instead I said good night, and went up to bed.

I took the 8 o'clock service the following morning and when I returned found Griselda sitting at the breakfast table with an open note in her hand. It was from Anne Protheroe.

Required

It will be easy for you to secure the three subscribers. Ask your friends to help you. Probably the very ones that you least expected will be willing to subscribe. Just 3 new subscriptions—that's all there is to it. Money is not necessary, but in order that you may get the necessary information and subscription plans—

Bring or mail this coupon to The Atlanta Constitution TODAY!

Every one of you who wants--no matter whether you've got a cent in your pocket or not--can easily get this wagon.

Boys, it isn't the ordinary kind of a wagon that you've seen before—it's a dandy—made in a way that'll win your heart the minute you lay eyes on it. The boys who have already earned it say it's a "wow"—worth twice as much as the time it took them to get it.

You can earn it just as easy as the other fellow, but why wait? Now is the time to start if you intend getting "the jump" on the other fellows in your neighborhood.

"A population of 500,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's slogan. Let all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

SHOE REPAIRING SHOWS PROGRESS

"The great strides that have been made in the shoe repairing industry during the last three years," says L. R. Chappell, "would astonish one who had not been in the business for a long time."

"Recognizing the comfort people receive from shoes that have become moulded to the feet after a few weeks' wear, the leaders in the industry everywhere have been striving to repair the worn out soles and yet retain the shape as desired by the owner."

"Through the aid of new machinery and materials we can now put on new half soles and heels so that the shoe must be really removed from the wearer's foot, to detect that it has been repaired. Now we can make the shoes we repair last again as long as they have."

"Again, never in the shoe repairing industry have the shoe rebuilders taken as much pride in their work as at the present time. We recently organized in Atlanta Shoe Rebuilders' Association in which some 50-odd of the best shoers became members. Now we are all working together and vying with each other to see who can make even the slightest improvement in workmanship or service."

Mr. Chappell is the proprietor of the Quick Service Shoe Repair Shop under Jacob's Drug Store at Broad and Alabama streets and has had 22 years' experience in repairing shoes for the people of Atlanta.

He became a leader in this new nationally important industry when he installed the latest improved shoe rebuilding machinery about three years ago, and now his well-equipped centrally located shop is one of the busiest in Atlanta.

"The gratifying part of our business is to us old-timers," continues Mr. Chappell, "is that the shoe rebuilding industry has climbed up to be the sixth nationally important industry and there many of us worked for the other fellow in a little cobbler's shop in a hole in the wall around the corner, today we have shops here on the main streets where the monthly rental is over $1,000 a month, dignifying our business along with our neighbors."

"The repairing of a shoe is not altogether the sole function of the up-to-date shop. Take our case as an illustration, we do a big business in drying shoes all colors, not infrequently we will dye the same pair of shoes over half a dozen times."

"Another branch of the shoe repairing industry is that the shoe shining department. We thought enough of this department a few years ago to have built a raised marble platform and place swivel mahogany chairs on it, allowing the people having their shoes shined to relax in comfort for the 6 or 7 minutes it takes."

HOME FINANCING PLAN ATTRACTIVE

"If the people of Atlanta and vicinity understood our plan of financing a home better," says D. W. Watson, branch manager of the Jefferson Mortgage Company, of 60 Broad street, N. W., "more of them would become home owners."

"To illustrate how easy our plan enables a person or family to own a home," continued Mr. Watson, "we give them the opportunity of paying off any mortgage there is or they place with us on the home they own, or pay part down on it to someone else; they then pay us back in monthly payments which is usually less than the rent of the same property."

"There is no element of speculation in our disappearing mortgage plan, because when a home is financed under this plan it is financed until the mortgage is paid in full. When a person finances under our disappearing plan the monthly payments include the payment of interest and a portion of the principal, thereby constantly reducing the principal, which, in effect, means that every time a monthly payment is made it means that you increase your equity in your property."

"The disappearing mortgage plan is proving popular, due to the fact that people are becoming more educated to making a mortgage on their furniture, or automobile, and then smaller monthly payments until paid for."

"The plan is virtually the same—the more they pay on their furniture or car the more they own of it; whereas if they rent their furniture or car they would never own it."

"As our company, the Jefferson Mortgage Company, represents the Investors' Syndicate as loan correspondents in this section, they through us, have unbounded faith in Atlanta property, and we have unlimited funds to lend on homes in and around this fast-growing city."

YORK DEVOTES TIME TO REX LUNCH ROOM

R. L. York, proprietor of the Rex Lunch Room, 109 Pryor street, N. E., announces he is giving special attention to this popular stand, and that his chef is preparing new and old favorite dishes in a way that would tempt the appetite of the most fastidious epicurean.

Mr. York in his long years of experience has explained to his very efficient staff of men and girls that he will see that only the best of foods will be bought, and for them to cook and serve it in a way that will please each and every customer. The cafe is open from 6 a. m. until midnight.

ELECTRICAL COMPANY GETS SPLENDID START

"We are very thankful," says Marion Hawkins, general manager of the Hawkins Electrical Company, "to the people of Atlanta and vicinity for the splendid recognition they have given us in our first thirty days in our new location on Peachtree street, where Ivy ends and Forrest avenue begins."

"This unusual recognition from new and old friends is very gratifying to us at this time, and our store sales in everything electrical has been very good, and our electrical construction jobs many, and the same has been highly appreciated."

The Hawkins Electrical Company has been in the construction branch of the business here in Atlanta for 11 or 12 years, but in moving to the new location they began selling everything electrical, and the first thing they did was to stock their store with everything of the latest in electrical appliances. Mr. Hawkins stated that it was their intention to keep right up to the minute on all electrical devices of proved merit.

Mr. Hawkins is a graduate of the Georgia School of Technology in electrical engineering, and his father, B. H. Hawkins, who looks after the outside construction work, is recognized as one of the most capable electrical construction men in this section of the country.

The elder Mr. Hawkins is much sought after where the construction work is around wires of very high voltage, such as is used by the ice plants and other industries. Being a former baseball pitcher of note, he has a large number of friends among the athletic associations and amusement companies in Atlanta and elsewhere in the state.

The younger Mr. Hawkins is a popular member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, fraternal societies and civic clubs, and is an organization leader of exceptional ability.

MILLER LUMBER CO. CHANGES LOCATION

Miller Lumber Company, formerly located at 1177 Ridge avenue, has moved to their own property at 1001 Fortress avenue. This company, in addition to carrying all the standard sizes in lumber, makes a specialty of the best grades of finishing lumber and fine long leaf pine flooring. Their best grades of lumber are kept in dry buildings.

The Miller Lumber Company does a large business with repair men, as a bundle of laths, a roll of roofing, one 2-by-4, or plank is sold with the same courtesy as large quantities. The firm will deliver building material anywhere in the Atlanta territory in very quick time.

"We considered this fall a good time to move," says Mr. Miller, "and then we would be better able than ever to take care of the needs of our customers when they were ready for building supplies of any kind."

"We have a firm faith in the south side of town," he continued, "for there is much undeveloped land between our new location and East Point and Hapeville. We are lending all the encouragement we can to those that are building or making repairs."

"Not in many years has there been a better time to building than right now when labor is extra plentiful and building material of all kinds very low, and the same applies to repairs, many cases coming to our notice where the repair work being done is far below the expectations of the home owner."

JOHNSTON SCORES FULTON TAX PLAN

J. Johnston Johnston, member of the city planning commission, called on voters of the state to defeat the proposed constitutional amendment embracing empowering members of the Fulton county commission to levy and collect taxes for the establishment of parks and sewer, water and fire systems.

"I feel that the proposed sewer district, which is recommended in the report of Whitman, Reardon & Smith, would be ample to provide all the sewers needed and that enactment of such a bill would place the county in a position to vote bonds or otherwise raise funds for this purpose," he said. "An extension of that power I regard as dangerous."

STUDENT HELD UP, LOSES WATCH, $15

Don Martin, of 33 Roanoke avenue, a senior at Georgia Tech night school, was held up and robbed of $15 and a wrist watch by three white men on Fifteenth street, near Peachtree, about 9 o'clock Saturday night. Members of the family reported to police Sunday. They were of the opinion that the men were the bandits, who robbed a grocery store manager on Peachtree street a few minutes later. Young Martin stated that he believed the men made their escape in an automobile parked on Peachtree. One of the trio was armed, he said.

Sound Bonds Buy NOW for Income and Profit

CERTAINLY the happenings of the last year have demonstrated the wisdom of a conservative investment policy. Bonds—often referred to as the safest form of investment—have again proved their right to that title. Bond investors have enjoyed continuing income from their former holdings... have also found unusual opportunities for additional investment in this year's bond market.

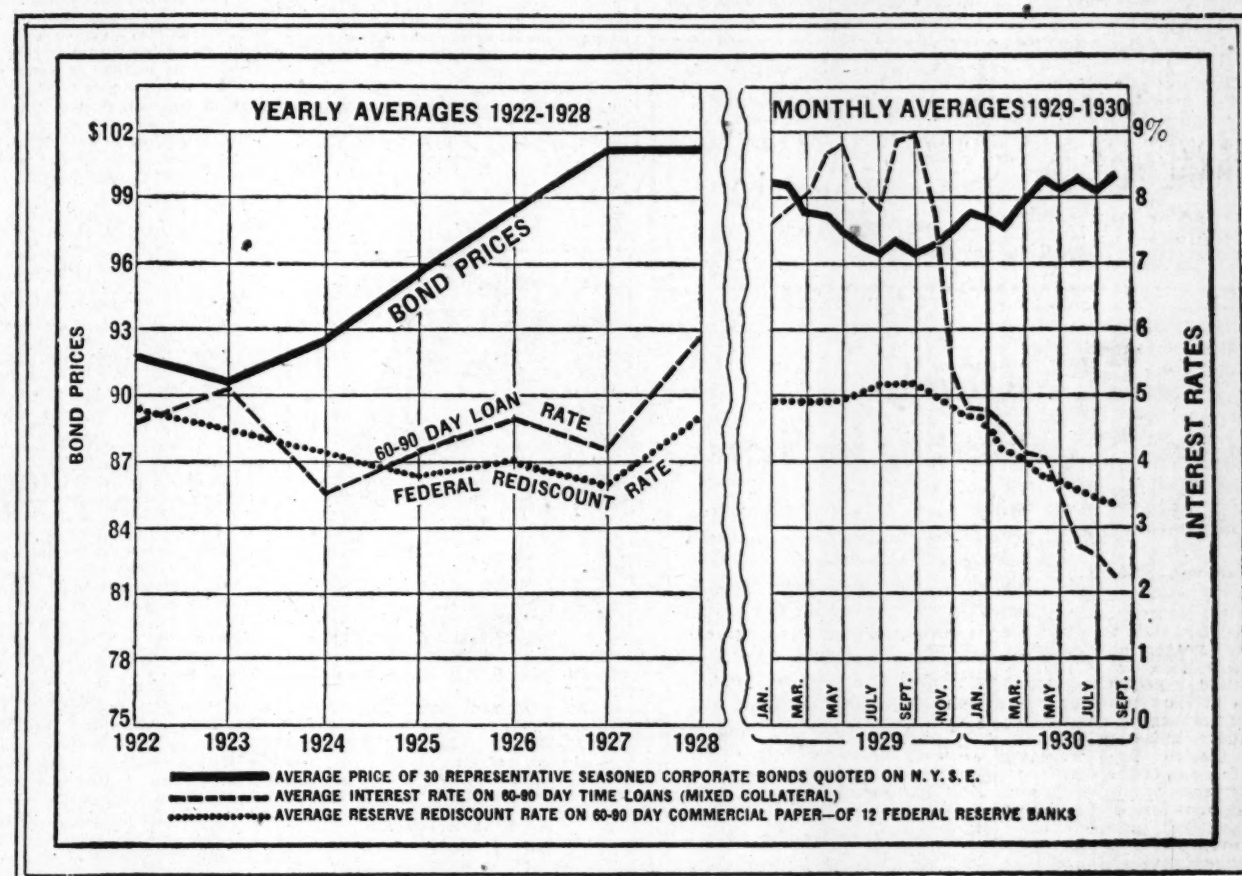

During a period of business recession money is withdrawn in great volume from the stock market. Real estate is not so active. Not so much money is required to carry on the reduced volume of general business. More money flows into the most conservative investment channels.

Under these conditions, many authorities have commented on the comparatively low level of bond prices. They logically think, with money rates lower than at any time since the summer of 1924, bonds should be selling higher than they are. Such authorities unanimously agree that now is an especially favorable time to buy bonds.

Another advantage to the bond investor has been the sharp decline in commodity prices... bond income is worth more in purchasing power. Eminent economists think that we may be in a prolonged period of declining commodity prices. Hence bond income already acquired or newly purchased has the prospect of continuing its increased value in buying more goods per dollar.

The day is coming when the present rate of yield from sound bonds will not be available—when present bond values will not be available.

The bond market during the business recession has shown remarkable steadiness in contrast to more speculative forms of investment which were so popular less than a year ago. Increased funds available for bond investment have absorbed a large volume of new issues this year. And, besides, many bond issues not thoroughly distributed last year have also been disposed of. Member banks of the Federal Reserve System have increased their security holdings more than 15½ per cent since January 1, 1930—largely in bonds.

It is evident from the above chart that bond prices tend to move in opposite direction to fluctuations in money rates. At the present time money rates are easier than at any time since 1924 (August, 1930 rates are, of course, lower than the general average for 1924) and bond prices, particularly among gilt-edge securities, are steadily moving upward. Many opportunities for unusual yield still remain, however, among the less widely sought for but well-secured issues.

In the municipal bond market dealers report a brisk demand, and that is always considered a sign of market strength.

Certain types of bonds always lead in an upward price movement. They are the best known and most marketable issues—favored during times of unsettled business conditions. Back of these leaders is a great volume and variety of well secured bonds which are usually purchased to be held for income. Among such issues, the investor whose circumstances enable him to buy bonds for income mainly will find unusual values obtainable.

It is in times like the present that careful investors make the greatest financial progress. In bonds they can buy more income for less money and enjoy the higher rate of interest for years to come. And it is not to be forgotten that bonds purchased at current prices may, later, show appreciation in market value.

Most competent observers believe that the ground work is being laid for improved business activity. The underlying economic strength of this country has been little impaired during a period of world-wide depression. It is a time for confident action in taking advantage of present investment opportunities in the bond market.

Encouraging Trade Aspects Brighten Week's Business

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

Associated Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(P)—The industrial and trade news of the past week, marking the close of October, normally the peak month of autumn, adhered in the main to the cheerless tenor of preceding weeks, but was not wholly without encouraging aspects.

Heavy industries such as steel, were inclined to recede further, but retail trade was well maintained at its recent volume; commodity price trends were mixed, but inclined to stiffen, and new projects to increase employment continued to multiply. A national survey by the Associated Press indicated that recently announced programs for both public and private projects to put idle hands to work involve, in the aggregate, the application of about $1,000,000,000.

The grain markets, in particular, showed considerable stability. The Analyst's weekly commodity price index showed a gain of 8.10 of one point, having ranged between 121 and 122 for the past four weeks. The week's advances were recorded in farm products and textiles, but were partly offset by declines in fuels and metals. A fresh reaction in the stock market was perhaps a little unsettling.

In the steel industry, ingot output

continued to shrink. Iron Age estimated production last week at 50 per cent of capacity, against 53 a week previously. E. G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, in commenting on the corporation's third quarter report, showing net of only 63 cents a share, said improvement was not yet in sight. The industry generally, however, looks for a normal upturn after the first of the year. Executives who believed the bottom had been touched in the third quarter, however, have been forced to revise their opinions.

Freight car loadings for the week ended October 18 again declined.

There is usually a seasonal slump

after the middle of October, but it is possible it has come a little earlier this year. Improvement in the steel contracts let during the first three weeks of October, was not maintained in the latest week, when the aggregate for the states east of the Rockies, as reported by F. W. Dodge

Corporation, was the lowest since August.

to mark time, with the rate of operations for the past week reported as the lowest since last January. Some of the manufacturers, particularly body makers, however, are calling back workers to production on new models, to be introduced in January. There has been considerable gossip about lower prices for the 1931 models. The few exceptions, the dealer situation is reported as satisfactory, although there has been a little piling up of used cars.

Several miscellaneous manufacturers were reported as more active, including makers of radio sets. The textile industry also seemed to be holding its own. Stove and washing machine manufacturers were reported as more active.

quiet, and hide prices eased. In non-ferrous metals, copper was generally down to 9-12 cents a pound, the lowest in more than 30 years.

The arrival in New York of two executives of the Katanga mine in the Belgian Congo, however, led to reports of a wide-scale curtailment program was being planned. The oil situation failed to improve, with crude prices displaying little stability.

BONDS DEVELOP BETTER TREND

BY DONALD C. BOLLES.

Associated Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(P)—Contrasted with the unstable conditions that have prevailed virtually since last week, bond prices were firmer

last week but activity still suffered by comparison with the period when liquidation was in full swing.

For the greater part of the week,

domestic railroad and utility issues ignored the influence of the stock market and went upward but industrial corporate bonds remained in the dollums, except for a few obligations.

Far more conspicuous was the United States government list which was well supported throughout the weeks of sagging and was considerably strenghtened by the inquiry from banks throughout the week. Several issues climbed to new highs for 1930.

Signs of greater stability in Brazil, and encouraging news of diverse character from some other foreign countries put new vitality into the foreign market, and the widest gains of the week were in that section of the stock exchange list. Substantial recoveries have been made by Latin American and German bonds from their lows reached several weeks ago.

Many of the South American issues have recovered the largest portion of the losses suffered in the swift decline and some are within a few points of the mid-September prices just before the decline. The Argentine 1901

Peru 1903, Chile 6s of 1901

and 1903, Bolivian 7s of 1903 and the 8s of 1903, Brazilian 8s, 7-12s and 6-12s which dipped as much as

30 points in some instances have come back strongly.

The German list moved spasmodically but retraced part of the ground lost in the selling. German 7s, which sagged 5 points to 100-1.8, sold at the end of the week around 103 and German International 9-12s down 9 points to 73-1.2 a short time ago, sold as high as 80. German municipals and industrial bonds moved irregularly higher.

WALL STREET SHOWS DISGUST AT INACTIVITY AS PRICES FAIL TO RISE.

BY CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(NANA)—

Following a reaction in the early trading in which number of stocks declined to new low prices, the general stock market experienced a rally which closed it on Saturday above the preceding level. The rally was given for the recovery was that the market had become overbought but the real underlying factor was the conviction of short commitments by professional bears. There is such a huge volume of stocks outstanding that it is hard to believe that the professional bears could bring about a condition where the market was overbought.

The extent of the rally was not impressive considering the decline which it experienced last week and this is viewed as indicating further liquidation this week.

Favorable News Abundant.

The Street is in a most disgusted frame of mind. There is nothing favorable in the news from day to day to encourage aggressive buying of stocks, about the only reason being that the market is so far from the top figures and that the bulk of shares are now lodged in strong hands which are in position to hold them indefinitely pending a recovery in general trade and industry.

Prices, however, have declined so far that some of the biggest houses in the Street are anxiously trying to discern the buying point. Some believe that the Wall Street authorities are ready to sell. One large firm recently sent to its clientele a list of common stocks which the firm considered to be selling at attractive levels. The list was made up of 20 different issues. The firm's previous suggestion to sell was on November 13,

1929, when stocks had the biggest decline in 1929 following the result of a 10-cent stock mentioned in the list. Railroad shares are also conspicuous for their absence.
